Jane and Bob’s Camping Trip

Bob came home after his last day of work for a two week vacation. He was in a great mood.

“Jane”, he said, “are you ready for our camping trip? I’ve been looking forward towards this for so long. I can’t wait to get out to the lake.” Jane said, “Well I’m almost finished packing the bag”. “Hurry up”, said Bob, “I just can’t wait”. Jane finished packing and Bob loaded the car. They had everything they could possibly want. Bob was so looking forward to this trip and Jane was too. The two of them had been camping many many times and each time, it brought them closer together. They set up their tent as soon as they arrived at the camp site. They also started to gather sticks together for their campfire that evening. Everything was really going well, then all of a sudden the wind started to pick up, “swish swish”. They could hear it whistling in the trees. “I don’t know if I like the looks of this”, said Jane. “Don’t worry”, Bob said, “We’ve been through much worse.” They kept trying to light the campfire, but the wind kept blowing out the matches before they could start it. As the sun set the shadows of the trees that were moving looked like monsters. Jane started to get nervous. “I don’t like those sounds. They give me the creeps”, said Jane. “Don’t worry”, said Bob and he gave her a big hug. “Well, we can’t start a campfire, so why don’t we just into our tent and cuddle up”, said Bob. “Okay”, said Jane. “That’s always fun to do”. They got into the tent, but all of a sudden a big gust of wind caused the tent to collapse all around them. At first Jane looked like she was going to cry. “Don’t be upset”, said Bob, “It’s okay”. Then Jane stopped and started laughing. She just cracked up. “Well, I never expected this to happen”, said Jane, “but it’s kind of funny”. “I agree”, said Bob. “There’s no use staying here tonight”. So they packed up their tent and went to a motel. “We’ll try again tomorrow morning.” “Sounds good”, said Bob. They spent the rest of the evening cuddled up watching MTV on the motel television.
Jane and Bob’s Camping Trip

Jane and Bob got their bags together to go on a camping trip that they both looked forward to for a long time. Once all the bags were in the car they got going. They found this great camp site and wanted to set the tent up in a hurry because it was getting dark and they wanted to start their camp fire to keep warm. Once they went in the tent, the wind kicked up and it got really really windy. The tent collapsed. They became very upset with the fact that now they had to reset the tent in all of the wind blowing around. Suddenly out of the shadows, Jane heard something, some sounds, some very strange sounds, and she went to hug Bob for protection.
Jane and Bob’s Camping Trip

Jane and Bob were getting ready for their annual camping trip. They were very excited, but wondered if it was too cool to go. They decided that they have the cars packed and they would go anyway. They got to the campsite, unloaded their bags, set up their tents, and to their surprise the wind was very strong. It collapsed the tent and they had to set up the tent again. This time they set it up more sturdily, so the tent did not fall. They then made a campfire and warmed up around the fire since it was a bit cool. As they sat there, they looked at the moon and stars. They also saw shadows that also frightened them. They also heard sounds, they thought might have been bears or animals. They hugged each other and enjoyed the fire and tried not to think on the scary things. They looked at how well they set up the tent and they were happy at where they were. It was nicer than being at home with all the hustle and the bustle. Now they can relax and just enjoy each other. There was so much hurrying before the trip that they were both quite tired. They had also been upset when the tent fell and it made them even more tired. They decided they’d go in and go to sleep. They went into the tent and both collapsed into their sleeping bags to enjoy the evening in their tent.
Jane and Bob’s Camping Trip

Today I called Jane and I asked her if she’d like to go on a camping trip with me. She said yes and we also called up our friends Bob and Sarah and we all packed our bags. We decided to go up to the mountains. Unfortunately, we were meeting some other friends and we had to hurry up and pack our bags before we missed the connecting train up to the mountain. We backpacked up. We unloaded our supplies and set up our tent. It was very windy that day, so in order not to make our tent collapse we put rocks at the end and we took our hammers and made it very strong. We tapped it down with hammer and pulled the strings tight. When we got inside the tent collapsed on us and we were very upset. After that, we got out of the tent, we got some wood and we built a camp fire and Bob was making shadows with his hands for the rest of us. Then we heard a sound and we got very nervous. We thought it was a bear, but it wasn’t, it was just a little squirrel running by. We all had a big laugh and we hugged each other.
Jane and Bob’s Camping Trip

Jane and Bob had made some reservations to take a camping trip up in the woods on the top of the mountain. They were having a busy morning but they packed their bags and hurried to the car so that they could drive up to the camp ground at the check in time. They drove and drove until finally they reached the camp site. They unpacked their truck and took out their new tent which they had never set up before. They began to unravel the tent and undo the spikes and all the ropes that were needed to pitch the tent and they worked furiously to get the tent up as the wind was kicking in and they were worried that there was going to be a storm. When they were completely finished with the tent they sat inside and decided to have a cup of coffee because they were feeling a little tired when all of sudden a strong gust of wind came along and the tent collapsed. Bob and Jane were very upset about this because it was now looking like a serious storm was coming and they spent such a long time pitching the tent but they both went outside and put the tent back up again. Later that evening the weather started to clear so they decided to build a campfire. They added log upon log onto the camp fire and wrapped themselves up in blankets beside the fire and discussing the event of the day. All of a sudden they began to see some eery shadows. They were on top of the mountain by themselves so they began to feel a little frightened about what might be in those woods. They heard some sounds that they thought might be some animals. So Bob decided to get up and have a look around. When Bob returned from looking in the woods he said that there was nothing there except some raccoons and he and Jane sat by the camp fire and hugged one another.
Jane and Bob's Camping Trip

Jane and Bob decided to have a weekend getaway, kinda escape work and all that kinda stuff, and have a little romantic thing, type of getaway for the weekend. And Bob is a tremendous fan of camping, and Jane could do without it or not. So they pack everything up. And it's a Friday after work and they decide, let's just go, let's just do it before we decide that there's a million things to do around the house that should be done, but we need this getaway. So they pack everything up, and they head up to Vermont and this is where they're gonna camp for the weekend. And everything's very nice. They get there and they find a little spot alongside a river, and they set up their tent. And everything's going very nicely. They spend their first night on Friday night. Then Saturday, a little bit of a storm was kicking up, and Jane thinks that "You know, Bob, maybe we should get a hotel for tonight, instead of being out here in the elements." And he reassures her, "No, everything's gonna be fine. Don't worry. We bought this kicking tent at EMS. We're gonna be fine, nothing's gonna happen." And of course, because it's Vermont and the weather comes in like nothing, a good wind comes by, and the tent takes a beating for it. And now Jane is like, "Bob, come on. It's time for the hotel, we gotta get outta here." And he explains to her, "You know, we can reset this up. If you really want to go to a hotel we can, but we really wanted to get away from just all of the people and the commotion, and the confusion." And she says, "Well, alright. If you really feel we can recover this and make it okay." Bob resets up the tent and everything, and they decide that "Okay, we'll try and stick this out." And the storm passes over and everything's fine. And Bob feels really badly now that Jane has been through this, what was a big trauma for her, and she was really great about it. She decided to stay and stick it out. And he builds a really nice campfire, and because we're all kids at heart, he's gonna tell campfire stories around the campfire. And he's telling her creepy little stories and he's making little shadows out of the fire on the trees. And of course now, every little twig that is out there starts to drive her crazy, cause of course now, it's this monster or that monster coming through. He reassures her that it's a fox or whatever, although in his mind, he's thinking, well it could be a bear, but you don't tell her that. And it turns out that despite all the trauma that happened during the day or maybe because of it, cause it brought them closer together, they have a really, really beautiful weekend that ends on a high note because they're both together and warm around the campfire.
Jane and Bob’s Camping Trip

Jane and Bob’s camping trip ... well, actually this was my camping trip cause I was also there, but we’re just gonna call this Jane and Bob’s camping trip. Jane and Bob, you have to understand, Jane and Bob know nothing about camping, but they insisted on going, and of course, instead of packing the way you’re supposed to for a camping trip, they actually packed bags, like they were going on vacation. So they’re packing these bags and I’m trying to make them hurry up a little bit because we need do have to get out there before the storm was coming here, so we wanted to get up to where we were going. As far as their tent goes, it was like the biggest fiasco. They didn’t know what they were doing but they were insisting on doing this so they put their tent up. They put the tent up at probably the most inopportune time when the wind was just really kicking up. So of course, the tent collapses. I was the one that was upset. I mean they were having a great time, but I was the one that was so upset about this. You know, and then we did the campfire thing, and we all sat around. I don’t know, everything seemed fine but later on when I went back to my tent, I mean, I don’t know, there was some shadows over by their tent, and we were hearing some sounds, and then all of a sudden we see them hug, so I guess everything was fine. But it was an adventure.
Jane and Bob’s Camping Trip

One weekend, late in the summer, Jane and Bob decided to take a camping trip out East. They arrived at the campsite, Friday evening just before dusk and they grabbed their bags and set up their tent and set up a campfire. It was a beautiful night. And then they went in to sleep. The next morning they woke up to howling winds and heavy rains and they had to hurry and get their bags out of the tent. They threw them in the car and they went back to secure the tent, when a big gust of wind came, pulled the stakes out of the ground and the tent collapsed. They were feeling very upset and they didn't know what to do, there was too much rain. So they went back to the car and waited it out, waited for the storm to pass. When the storm had finally passed, they went back over to the tent, set it back up and hoped that the sun would dry all their stuff. They took a hike and when they got back, the tent was dry and they decided to cook something for lunch.
Jane and Bob’s Camping Trip

Jane and Bob had made plans to go camping for the weekend. So they got up early in the morning, packed their bags and wandered around the house getting ready for their camping trip. They had packed most of their stuff in the morning because they knew they had to meet friends on the road and they would be in a hurry that morning but they still had some stuff left to pack. They drove for about five hours to the campsite with their friends. When they got to the campsite they decided the first thing they should do was unpack their tent. They unpacked the tent and were attempting to set it up when a big gust of wind came by and blew it over. And Jane said to Bob “I think that we should make sure that the tent is secure because the wind seems pretty strong and we don’t want it to collapse when we’re sleeping in the middle of the night.” So Bob agreed and they decided that they would put the stakes in deeper than usual and set up their tent. That night while they were sleeping, the wind picked up a bit and knocked over the tent and the tent collapsed. Jane got very upset because she had gotten scared in the middle of the night that this tent had collapsed and Bob said, “Nothing to worry about” and gave her a hug and said, “Well, you know, just put the tent back up.” They lit a campfire because it was late now and they couldn’t see what they were doing and they needed to put the tent back up. While they were working on putting the tent back up, Jane looked over to the trees and saw something that looked like the big shadow of a bear. So she said to Bob, “We better get this tent put up right away, because by the sound of it and the shadow in the forest there looks like there might be bears.” And Bob hugged her and said, “Come on, Jane, there’s no bears in the woods.”
Jane and Bob were getting ready to go on their annual camping trip with their friends. They packed their bags. They were in a hurry because they were running very late. After driving several hours to get to their destination they decided to set up the tents. They got into a huge argument because Bob said that he knew exactly how to set up the tent all by himself, but he didn’t. After several hours and several arguments it ended up that Jane could do it herself. They had a very nice night. They and their friends set up a camp fire, roasted dinner over the fire and sang songs, played some games and had a lot of fun. After going to bed, a bad storm came with a lot of rain and wind. The tent collapsed and the camp fire went out. Jane got especially very upset because she was afraid of the sounds in the woods. They had to spend the rest of the night sleeping in the back of the truck. Bob held onto Jane because he knew she was afraid of the darkness and the sounds. The next day it was nice and bright and sunny. Once all their things were dried off they set back up the tents, they continued on with their trip and they had a great time.
Jane and Bob’s Camping Trip

Jane and Bob were going on a camping trip. They had several bags with them. Some were filled with cloths, others with food, some with toiletries. They were in a bit of a hurry to get the tent up because the skies were getting dark and it looked like it was going to rain and it started to get windy. Together they worked on putting the tent up. By the time they got most of the tent done, it started to collapse, which made them very upset. They took a rest for a little while. They saw that the skies were getting darker, so they worked to get the tent up as quick as they could. After they got the tent up, the skies started to clear up and they decided to build a campfire. They sat and relaxed after the stress of the tent falling down. As they were relaxing in front of the campfire, they saw a shadow from the tent and they heard some very strange sounds. They walked around to see what the sounds were from. Jane started to get very upset, so Bob tried to console her and gave her a hug. When they went behind the tent to see what it was, they discovered it was the trees just shuffling.
Jane and Bob's Camping Trip

Jane and Bob had been planning this camping trip for many many months. Jane and Bob loved to go camping. Their bags have been packed for five days they were so excited. Jane and Bob went upstate New York to a beautiful camp resort that Jane used to always go to when she was a young child. Jane and Bob have been married for ten years now and they decided to take this trip together without their children. Jane and Bob stayed in a tent on this beautiful camp ground that was her favorite campground. While they were there they met some friends and they stayed around by the pool that was on the campground, chatted with a few couples, and they had a really wonderful time. That night they went home after a long night out with the new friends they made and the preceded to go to sleep. Suddenly, there was a big gust of wind and Bob went out to see what was going on. He went to see if there was a hurricane brewing or what not and he fell over from the big wind storm that was approaching and he collapsed. Jane ran out because she heard him falling in leaves and she was so upset to see that her husband had hurt himself. He was yelling for help and somebody there was a doctor. He came out and took a look at Bob and said that he had broken his leg. Jane helped her husband and was afraid for him. The doctor called for some additional help. Bob was taken to the local hospital upstate New York and Jane accompanied him. Bob was treated well and was given a cast and unfortunately this was really putting a damper on the trip, but Jane and Bob still continued to have a good time, despite the fact that Bob was in a cast. They went back to the campground. It was morning time already and they heard the sounds of the birds chirping by their door. The wind had died down and the new day was beginning. They were still so exhausted, so they decided to sleep in until noon. Jane hugged her husband and said that they were going to make the best trip out of this anyway.
Jane and Bob’s Camping Trip

Jane and Bob decided to go on a last minute camping trip. They had to hurry up and pack their bags. When they got up to the camp grounds, it was very windy. They tried to set up the tent, but it collapsed. They were very upset. They tried to light a campfire, but it wasn’t going very well. Jane heard some sounds and she saw a shadow in the woods. She hugged Bob and asked him to go check what it was, but there was nothing there, but the wind.
Jane and Bob’s Camping Trip

Jane and Bob arrived at the camp ground. They were taking their bags out of the car and Bob said, “We better hurry it looks like a storm is coming. We gotta get the tent set up.” So they rushed up to the place where they were setting up their tent and about 20 minutes into trying to set up the tent, they were laughing. It was not an easy chore, a strong wind came along, and the tent collapsed. Jane was upset, saying “I’m so tired already, and we haven’t even started.” And after about an hour, they finally got the tent set up and Bob said, “Alright, we’ll make a nice campfire.” So they made a nice campfire because it was getting a little cool. And they were roasting marshmallows, and telling stories. Actually they were telling ghost stories and Jane happened to see a shadow and hear sounds which Bob didn’t hear. But she started to panic. But Bob hugged her and said “It’s okay. There’s nothing, it’s your imagination. Don’t let it run away with you.” And she said, “You know, you’re right.” And they went into the tent and went to sleep.
The Accident

Sue was racing home from work with groceries in the car because she was ready to make dinner. She wanted to have a special dinner for Mike when he got home because he had just gotten a big promotion at work. Well the weather had turned ugly, and it started to rain. While Sue was driving on the road there was an accident she had with another car. Luckily it wasn’t serious, but just to be on the safe side the policeman said that, “I would recommend you going to the hospital to just check out those bruises that you received.” So Sue went to the hospital. She got checked out by the doctor. She waited in the waiting room for Mike to get there. When Mike arrived, Sue had tears in her eyes because she was very shaken by the accident. The doctor said “There’s nothing to be worried about. Everything will be okay. Sue will just need to have some rest and relaxation for the next few day.” So Mike went over to his wife, gave her a really big hug, and said, “Why don’t we go home honey?” And on the way home, Sue remembered that all the food for dinner was in her car that was towed away to the repair shop. Seeing as they had nothing in the house to eat, they both made a big bag of popcorn, and they had a can of Kool Aid that was left over in the refrigerator. Afterwards they went to bed and Sue said, “I’m so sorry. I planned this really big dinner for you.” And Mike just gave her a really big hug, and said, “The best kind of gift I have is you, home safe with me.”
The Accident

One day Sue was driving to work and she was stuck in traffic and there were all kinds of cranes and machinery and equipment on the road and she wasn’t really paying very attention and suddenly the car in front of her stopped. She smashed into the car in front of her and had a terrible accident causing the car in front of her to veer off the road and she wound of in a ditch. The passerbys who saw the accident stopped and they called an ambulance who took her quickly to the hospital. She had to wait a few minutes for the emergency room doctor to see her and to call her husband Mike. He finally got to the hospital in tears after an hour and a half. Finally, the doctor came and saw her and said we think we need to give you some x-rays to make sure you’ll be okay. That’s what they did. The x-rays showed that nothing was broken and she just had some bad bruises but that she could probably go home and wouldn’t have to stay there overnight. Mike and Sue went home. They stopped to get some take-out Chinese food for dinner on the way. Mike tucked Sue in bed, gave her a hug and she fell asleep.
The Accident

Sue was on her way home from work and she was thinking about what was going on that day and the fact that Mike was going to pick up the kids from mom’s house. She wasn’t really looking at the road, when all of a sudden she looked up and there was a tire that had fallen of a truck in front of her in the road. She tried to swerve around it, but she bumped up on it and she crashed into the divider. She was really scared and her body felt sore. She thought she was okay, but she felt like her neck and her back hurt badly, she was bleeding and her head hit the steering wheel. Before she knew it, because it was a busy road, police came by and they checked her out. She started feeling a little dizzy, so the police felt they should call an ambulance and take her to the hospital. While she was in the ambulance she kept wondering if Mike would be wondering where she was because she said she would call as soon as she got home. She knew the kids were at mom’s house waiting for a phone call. She got to the hospital and the doctor checked her out. They wanted to do a whole bunch of tests to make sure she was okay. Eventually they asked her if they could make a phone call. They had the nurse call her mom’s house to let Mike know where she was. Mike showed up at the hospital not much longer after and just seeing Mike made her burst into tears because she was so relieved to see him and the realization that something bad could have really happened to her made her really upset. A few minutes later the doctor came in and said it looked like she was okay, but that they had to stay and wait for a few more tests. They ended up staying at the hospital for about two or three hours. After that was over it was okay for them to go home. They went home and were much too tired for dinner and mom had already fed the kids. Mom already had the kids to sleep, they fell asleep in the car, and Mike and Sue went to bed. They hugged each other happy that they were together and that this wasn’t really a big deal.
The Accident

Sue was driving down the rode and coming up to this main intersection and she had the green light so she went, not realizing there was another car coming the other way, so she gets into this major accident. She had to be rushed to the hospital so while she’s there the doctors were checking her out and they said she was going to be alright but they wanted to run some tests so she asked the doctors if they would call her husband Mike. Mike was at work. They called him up and explained to him that Sue was in an accident and he needed to get to the hospital. So while on the way to the hospital he’s in the car and he’s crying his eyes out and he can’t believe what’s going to happen to his poor wife Sue so he gets to the hospital and he’s waiting and waiting and waiting and finally the doctor comes out and said that Sue in fact will be fine and that she’s a little banged up but she’ll be able to go home. So as thankful as he is he takes her home and they were sitting down and having dinner and she’s explaining to him how the day went and how the accident happened. By the end of dinner she was just so exhausted that she needed to go to bed. He gave her a hug and told her how much he loves her and how thrilled he is that everything was fine and sent her to bed. Then she goes to sleep.
The Accident

Sue and her brother were driving to their parent’s house. Just as they were getting on to the bridge, the accident happened. A car coming in the wrong direction hit them head on. They were both taken to the hospital and they had to wait to be seen, they also had to wait for their parents to come get them. They were about an hour from home. Sue was extremely upset. She had broken her ankle and her brother had hurt his back and it was Christmas morning. The doctor said it was a bad break and she would need surgery, but she could go home for the day. Her parents came to pick them up. They drove the hour back to her parent’s house where they opened their Christmas gifts and had their Christmas brunch. Unfortunately they had to cut their stay short and their parents had to bring them back to their own home, that was two hours away, to be admitted to the hospital to the surgery. Mom and dad were there to help them out and support them.
Sue was driving down the road and she got in a car accident. The ambulance came and had to take her to the hospital. She had to wait for Mike cause he was at work. She was upset and she cried, she thought she was really hurt. The doctor came, examined her, he told her she was okay. Mike showed up at the hospital. He took her home. They had a nice dinner which they ordered in. They went to bed early and they hugged good night.
The Accident

Sue was coming home from a bridal shower that she had just set up. She was excited about it. Everything went smoothly. She was the maid of honor and it was the first time she ever had to set up a bridal shower. The bride was surprised and everything went perfectly. The catering was delicious and she was just so happy that everything turned out so well. When she was on her way home it started raining lightly and she put on the wipers and she was just thinking about getting home. All the stress of setting up the party was over with. She was looking forward to a nice cup of tea. The rain started to pick up and the road was becoming slick. Sue was a little bit nervous, but she thought she could handle it. As she came up to an intersection and lightly tapped to brakes the car began to hydroplane and as the light turned red she went into the intersection and was hit broadside by another car. Sue was in a daze, but she felt okay. She was just worried because she wasn’t really sure what happened. In a few minutes, the scene became chaotic with the ambulances and all the lights and sirens and everything, so she was a little disoriented. The E.M.T.’s came, they put her onto the gurney and put her into the ambulance and took her to the hospital. They reassured her that everything was fine. This was just something they had to do. They had to immobilize everything, but she seemed okay, they just had to check her out. Meanwhile, waiting at home with the children, was Mike. Mike decided that he would feed the kids dinner. He ran out and got McDonald’s for them. They were waiting for Sue. He watched t.v. with the kids and he put them to bed. He was watching the time. It wasn’t like Sue to be late and he knew that, but he figured that maybe they hung around and she waited for the rest of the family to leave the party. He began to get worried when she was an hour late, but he thought, maybe she’ ll stop and give me a call in a little while. He was almost in tears as it was an hour and a half since she was due and decided to make a few phone calls. In the mean time, he wasn’t able to find her. A doctor called up from the hospital, got in touch with Mike, and said to relax, Sue was fine, but he should come and get her. She was in a state of shock, she had a minor accident, but she’ll be okay. So, Mike called his mother and asked her to come and just stay in the house with the children, they were in bed already, and he was anxious to get back to Sue. When he got to the hospital, he was instructed to which room she was staying in. He went and he saw Sue. She was a nervous wreck. He ran over and calmed her down and told her exactly what the doctor said. Everything was fine, she would be fine, and the kids were fine. They just couldn’t wait to get home. So, they waited, the doctor came in to sign her discharge papers and Mike signed them and they just went home. The mother-in-law was happy that Sue was fine. The mother-in-law went home and Sue and Mike decided to sit down, skip dinner because there was too much excitement for the night and she had enough food at the party anyway. They watched their favorite show on TV and before they knew it, they realized it was time for bed and they gave each other a hug and went to sleep.
The Accident

Sue is just finished with work and she is really excited just to go home and eat dinner. She’s starving, it’s been a long week, it’s Friday by the way. She hops in the car and is driving along the road home. It starts to rain and the roads are pretty bad. She gets hits. Another car coming along the opposite way smashes into the side of her car. Her air bags deploy, it’s a pretty bad accident, although not terrible. The police come, they call an ambulance and while she’s waiting for the ambulance to take her to the hospital she asks them to call her husband Mike. She goes to the hospital and is getting checked out and Mike shows up. Mike hugs her, they are both shaken up. They both burst into tears. They are really worried. Luckily, the doctor comes in and tells them it’s nothing serious, she checked out okay. No broken bones, they don’t think she has a concussion. The doctor said she’s going to be discharged, and sends her home. They sat around at home talking until they were ready to go to bed.
Sue and Mike had dinner at home. Mike was gonna be the good, dutiful husband because Sue was nine months pregnant, she was asking for Haagen Daz ice cream. So, Mike decided to get into his Mercedes and he drove to seven-eleven to get his precious Sue her ice cream. On the way back of getting her her ice cream, on the road was a skunk. And Mike, being the avid animal lover, plus he didn't really want to hit that thing and stink up his whole Mercedes, so he swerved out of the way. Well, he didn't anticipate that his wheels would lock, and he would skid on an ice patch. So, his Mercedes wound up in a ditch. Fortunately, it wasn't a horrible accident, he could crawl out of his Mercedes because they're very strong cars as we all know. Somebody can get hit by a firetruck and still survive in a Mercedes, that's why they're so expensive. That's from experience. Sue was calling the hospital, because she was going into labor, and the doctor told her that she'd have to wait until he finished with dinner. Well, Sue got a little pissed off, because Mike wasn't home from getting ice cream. Now in all of this, where's the cell phone? Now Mike's cell phone was in Mike's house, so Sue was calling the cell phone which she found ringing in her house. She was upset, she started crying, tears came down flowing off her face, she ended up screaming and crying on her bed, waiting for her husband Mike. Finally, a phone call came. "Your husband was in an accident" That's all Sue needed to hear, being nine months pregnant, going into labor, she said, "There's been an accident, well, we're going to have another accident; the baby's on the way, if somebody doesn't get here and get me to a hospital." So, the tow truck guy came with Mike and he took Mike and Sue to the hospital. And now after this horrible little incident with this accident, they have a beautiful baby boy, named Tommy. Now, they both all give hugs and kisses and everything's ok. That's it.
The Accident

Sue was on her way to the grocery store. It was a rainy mist day. The roads were very wet. Sue hit a wet patch on the road and swerved to avoid an accident but she was unable to do this and hit a tree nearby. An ambulance came and rushed her to the hospital. As she waited for the doctors to come in to take x-rays, her husband Mike appeared. Sue was in tears. The doctor finally appeared, examined Sue and everything seemed to be okay. Mike took her home, cooked her dinner, put her to bed and gave her a big hug, and said how happy he was that she was okay.
The Accident

Sue just went out and purchased a mountain bike. It’s been a long time since she rode a bicycle and she’s now an adult and the last time she rode a bicycle she was probably 12 or 13 years old. She wanted to get some exercise and to alleviate some of the stress from her hectic job so she thought that mountain biking would be a very good hobby for her to take up. She went out and bought the bicycle and decided to venture out onto the road. Unfortunately, because it’s been such a long time since Susan had ridden a bike, she fell off almost immediately after she got on. She had a little bit of an accident. The cuts that she sustained from the accident were not that severe but did require that she go to the hospital. When she went home to get into the car to go to the hospital she ran across her brother Mike who was waiting at the house. Mike took her to the hospital and Susan was so upset about not being able to ride her bicycle in such a long time and then having the accident that she began to cry. Mike told her not to worry and he wiped the tears away. When they were waiting in the waiting room of the hospital they were talking about how much fun Susan and Mike used to have when they were riding their bikes and that once Susan was all better she would be able to get back on that back and continue to take up this hobby. Shortly thereafter the doctor came into the waiting room and asked Susan to come in where he would stitch up her arm. It really wasn’t that painful and it was not that bad of an experience. On the drive home Susan told Mike that she was very grateful for him being there for her and it made the accident a little more bearable. When they got home they decided to cook a nice dinner together since Mike has been away at school and Susan hasn’t seen him in a long time. She was very tired after her very strenuous day, so she decided to go to bed early. She gave Mike a big hug and said that she would see him in the morning and they would continue their conversation.
The Accident

Sue who was at work received a phone call saying that Mike, her husband, was in a very bad car accident and that the car was still on the road and the ambulance had taken Mike to the hospital. When she arrived at the hospital the doctor was waiting to tell her about the accident. The accident wasn’t as bad as they had said and Mike was okay. But Sue was very upset. She was crying and she felt bad she wasn’t there for him when the accident took place but she comforted him and he was released from the hospital and she took him home, made dinner, took care of his wounds and put him to bed and gave him a kiss and a hug.
Sue left work promptly at 4:30, as always, but tonight was a special night. It was her and Mike’s anniversary. She was going to meet him at a restaurant for dinner. She was very very excited. She primped herself before leaving work and looked just pretty. As she was driving towards the restaurant, there was a lot of traffic. Suddenly she was at a stop light and BOOM, she felt someone hit her and hit her hard. She felt pain on her chest from the seatbelt. There was an accident. She wasn’t sure what to do, but stayed in the car. In a few minutes time there were police cars and an ambulance. They came, got her out of the car, and brought her to the hospital. As tears were rolling down her face, she thought of Mike waiting for her at the restaurant and how sad she was that this special night was ruined. In the hospital she asked the doctor if someone could call Mike at the restaurant. They called him and she waited for him patiently, as the tears continued to roll down her face. She saw the doctor, they checked her out, and she had a broken leg. They fixed her broken leg and at the last moment Mike came. He came and she felt so much better. He hugged her and said, “It will still be a special night”. He took her home and at home he ordered dinner. The dinner was delivered and he gave her dinner in bed. She was so happy and it was so special after all. She gave him a great big hug and after dinner they watched a special movie and went to sleep.
The Accident

Sue was riding her bike on the rode and she had an accident. She hit some sand and she fell off. She had to be rushed to the hospital. The doctor’s name was Mike. He told her that she had to wait a little while to get some stitches and she started to cry. Tears were rolling down her face. When she was all done getting her stitches she was able to go home and her mom made her a nice dinner. She gave her a big hug and she went to bed. She forgot all about it.
