There was a young mother that had a baby and in the morning she would hear the baby talking to herself in the crib. She realized that the baby was up and went in to get the baby. This was a happy baby. The baby would greet the mother with a big smile. The mother went to the crib and took her out. The baby always slept with her blankie and her teddy. She picked up the baby, blankie, and teddy and they had breakfast and then they played together. This baby loved getting stories read to her, so mommy would always read a story. The best ones were the ones with Barney in them. They would play pretend, and the game where they’d hide the teddy under the blankie and the baby would act afraid and then the mother would pull the blanket off, the baby would start cracking up a laughing. After a few rounds of that the baby was definitely tired, had a last bottle, and went back down for a nap.
Baby’s Morning

Baby’s liked to be with their mom especially like to be hugged. They liked their mom to tell them stories, play peek-a-boo. Most of all, they like to hug their teddy bears and go to sleep. Sometimes, mom would like to play with getting something lost and finding it again. So, it sometimes babies like pretend, I think.
One morning as the mother lay in her bed, she was awakened by the sound of her baby playing in her crib. She woke up and went to the baby’s room to see her playing with her blanket. The baby was very happy to see her mom and gave her a big smile. The mother greeted her with a warm smile and a hug. They went down stairs to have breakfast and the morning went on in their usual routine. After breakfast they played on the floor and the mother read the baby many stories. They played pretend with the baby’s dolls. After the morning of playing, they went out for their daily walk. When they came back, it was lunchtime. The baby had her usual lunch of cheese and carrots and some fruit. After lunch it was soon to be nap time, but the teddy bear was nowhere to be found. Mother knew that baby would not nap without her teddy bear. So they looked and looked for the lost teddy bear; baby helped. They looked under the couch and under the table and in all of the rooms of the house. Baby started to get tired and mother knew she needed to find it. At last they found the lost teddy bear under the baby’s blanket in her crib. When they found the teddy bear, both mother and baby were happy. Baby held the teddy bear and mother rocked her to sleep and all was well. And then baby fell asleep and took her afternoon nap.
Alexa’s mother was sleeping in her bed when she heard her baby start to cry. She went into her room and noticed that the morning had begun. Right away, Alexa wanted to start to play so her mother took her in the bed and they began to play a game of peek a boo with her blanket. Every time that Alexa was able to see her mother, she smiled, because she absolutely loved the game. They would laugh and hug and they really enjoyed themselves. After that, Alexa wanted to do her favorite thing which was to have her mother read her a story. They read the story of the three little bears and pretended that they were a part of the story. After they had read the story they decided to play with Alexa’s little teddy bear. They played a game of hide and seek with it. At some points they pretended that the teddy bear was lost and Alexa had to go find it. This game was a lot of fun for her, but make Alexa very tired so after this game she decided to take her nap.
Baby’s Morning

It was time to get up and the baby called for her mother. When the mother went into the room the baby gave her mother a big smile and they both gave each other a big hug. The mother took the baby out of the crib and the baby took her blanket with her. They went into the living room to play and to read a story. When the story was over they went to play pretend with the teddy bear. They had a little tea party and had lots of fun. When the tea party was over, the baby realized that her blanket was lost. They looked all over for the blanket and when they found it, it was under the pillows on the couch. It was such an exhausting morning that the baby needed a nap.
Baby’s Morning

When baby woke up mother went in and took the baby out of the crib. They played on a blanket and the mom read her a pretend story. They were both smiling and hugging and baby hugged the teddy bear. The she lost the teddy bear and mom had to go find it. After that they had lunch and baby took a nap.
Mother woke up one morning to hear her little baby chattering in the crib, "Bah bah bah bah bah." "Oh, it's going to be a good day," said mother. The baby woke up in a happy mood and that always made the day brighter. She ran over to the baby and began to play with him in his crib. "Peek-a-boo, peek-a-boo," she said as she put the blanket over her eyes and took it down again. "Peek-a-boo," the baby smiled and giggled. Mom picked him up out of the crib and gave him a big hug. "What a wonderful day we're going to have. I'll tell you a story and we'll play with your teddy bear, we'll have a little nap, It's going to be a great day." She changed his diaper, got him dressed, and gave him his cereal. While she was giving him his cereal, she decided to pretend that the spoon was an airplane. "Broom broom, open wide," mom said. Baby opened his mouth and laughed. He loved his rice cereal. It was the best part of the day. "Broom broom, open wide." After breakfast the baby was a big mess, so mom cleaned him up and they went to look for baby's favorite teddy bear, but they couldn't find it. "Oh I know," said mom, "the teddy bear must be lost." "Wah wah," said baby since he loved his teddy bear so much. "Don't worry, don't worry," said mom. "I'll find it." She searched all over the house. At last she found teddy bear. He was under a pile of dirty laundry. "That's where you're hiding, teddy bear," said mom. She gave teddy bear to baby and he broke out into a big grin. He sat there sucking his thumb and cuddling his teddy. "It seems like you're ready for a nap," said mom. She put baby down with his favorite teddy bear and he went right to sleep. So did mom, she was tired.
When I became a mother, I ended up having twins. And my one baby, Shannon decided to wake up early one morning and let Jeffery sleep. So she was playing in her crib, and I could hardly see what she was playing with because she was mostly under the blanket. So I went in to pick her up and I gave her a big hug. It made her smile, and she was all cooing and happy and smiling, and I really got some great quality time with her while Jeffery was sleeping. Then when Jeffery woke up, he was crying and it turns out he had lost his teddy bear. And it was under that blanket that Shannon was playing with. So we ended up picking up the blanket and we found his teddy bear. And I thought to calm them down I’d read them a story. And I’d pretend that there was all good things in the story. And that made them really happy. And after reading the story they got tired again and I laid them back down for a nap and they continued to sleep.
Baby’s Morning

One morning the mother woke up, heard her baby crying, and decided to go in and check on him. Right away the baby wanted to play. He handed her his blanket and gave her a big smile. They hugged one another, the mother lifted him out of the crib, and told him a story on the way to the changing table. While baby was on the changing table, the mother decided to pretend she was a cuddly teddy bear that was lost and needed some love. The baby found the teddy bear and gave her a great big kiss and hug. And the teddy bear was so relieved not to be lost anymore that they both decided to go back to the crib and take a nap.
One day, a mother decided that she would spend the entire day playing with her baby. They woke up in the morning and they played tent under the blanket. They hid under the blanket and kissed and kissed and then the baby gave the mother a big hug and lots of smiles as they rolled around their big bed. Then as – then as they went on with their day, the mother told her baby a story of the Three Little Bears. It was a pretend story about a teddy bear who was lost… It was a pretend story about a girl who lost her teddy bear somewhere in the forest. She searched and searched through trees and flowers and suddenly, she found her teddy bear right where she left it – in her garden. So relieved that she found the teddy bear, she hugged the teddy bear tight and laid in the garden and took a nap.
It was about 6 a.m., and the mother woke up hearing her baby play in the crib. She heard the baby giggle and laugh. And she went over into the baby’s room and leaned over the crib, smiled at her baby, said “Good Morning.” And the baby just smiled back at her and she said, “Okay, let’s get up and have a bottle and we can play together today.” They went into the family room and mom sat down and gave the baby the bottle. And when they were finished, she laid the baby down on a blanket in the family room floor and they proceeded to play. And mom would just smile at her and the baby would coo and laugh at mom. She liked to laugh at the faces mom made. And mom gave the baby a big hug, and just loved her baby so much. And after a little while of playing on the floor, mom decided that she’d tell the baby a story. So she sat the baby on the couch, on her lap and read her a beautiful story. The baby just sat there very content, loving to be in mom’s arms. Then mom took the baby out for a little walk. They went for a walk and in about a half an hour they came back. Mom again, went into the family room with the baby and put her in her bouncy chair, and was going to play a little “Peek-a-boo” with the baby. So they played “Peek-a-boo” for a little while, and the baby just laughed and cooed and thought it was so much fun, loved being with her mom. And after that the mom fed the baby some lunch. She was eating some vegetables, and trying her out with a little fruit. And the baby just loved it, as she sat kicking her feet in her bouncy chair. After lunch it was time to take a nap. So mom looked for the baby’s teddy bear. The baby loved to sleep with her teddy bear, but couldn’t find it. She looked all around, couldn’t remember where last they had the teddy bear. So she looked around the house, up and down the stairs, looking in the baby’s room, and in mommy’s room, and couldn’t find the teddy bear anywhere. But then finally she remembered what she had done earlier that morning. She had put the teddy bear in the wash, he needed to be cleaned. So, she took the teddy bear out. He ahd been all fluffed and dried and... he was all ready to go in for a nap with the baby. The baby was so excited. She loved to hug the teddy bear. Mom gently laid the baby in the crib and told her that it was time for a nap, and that she would see her in just a little while when she woke up. And mom kissed the baby on the cheek and quietly walked out the room and said “Good night, baby.”
“Good morning baby,” said the Momma. “Did you have a good night’s sleep?” The mother went into the baby’s room to greet the little baby. She had a good night’s sleep. She was standing in her crib, smiling, and she said “Hi” to her momma. She was holding onto her blanket and playing with her toys on the side of the crib. She was so happy to see Mommy. Mommy was happy to see her. As Mommy picked her up out of the crib, she gave a great big hug. And the baby gave Mommy a great big smile. And as they played, they decided to have breakfast and after breakfast, the Mommy held the baby on her lap and told her a story about a little girl who had lost her teddy bear. But in the end, the baby found the teddy bear and the baby was very tired after the book. So she took her blanket and she held it and she sucked her thumb and she took a nap. And then Momma put her back in the crib.
Mother heard the baby crying. She went into the crib to get the baby. The baby stopped crying and began to play, so the mother went into the closet and reached for a blanket to wrap the baby in. She went back to the crib, wrapped the baby in the blanket and gave the baby a big hug. The baby had a big smile on his face, so happy to see it’s his mom. Mom had a few minutes so she sat down with the baby in the blanket and read the baby a story. She read the baby the story of the three bears. The baby pretended … The baby pretended to act like a little bear and the momma pretended to be the big momma bear. And then they had a tiny little teddy bear who pretended to be another bear in the family. As they read the story they became very interested in the book and while mommy was reading her baby the story the dog went outside and got lost. The neighbor knocked on the door when he found the dog and the mommy came running to get the dog from the neighbor. Then mommy closed the door and realized that it was time to give baby her baby their breakfast if they were gonna be able to take a nap later on that afternoon. The end.
As a mother and having a baby, realizing that it takes a lot of time, we, it takes a lot of time out of your day, which you must do. You must play with them, so I take time out to play with the baby, we tell lots of stories and we laugh, we hug and smile. He loves to pretend so we pretend with his teddy bear, sometimes we pretend like that he loses it and then we find it and he’s happy so he understands that if he’s sad because he lost his bear, that sometimes once you find it things are much better. Then it was time after time to play, after play time we decided that it was time to take a nap, so we grabbed his blankie and we went up to his room and we read a story and gave him a hug and it was time for a nap.
Baby’s Morning

Mother was in bed when she heard baby Claudia in the crib. Mom started to pretend that she was still asleep. She thought that maybe if she kept her eyes closed for a little bit longer the calling from the crib would stop, but it didn’t happen. Claudia wanted to play. So, mom walked in there. She saw Claudia standing at the crib and greeted her with a big smile. Even though Mom was extremely tired, she knew that Claudia just wanted to come out and play. Mom pulled Claudia out of the crib and was ready to start their day. But Claudia said – “Bear, bear!”

because she’s just an infant, and Mom knows that her favorite teddy bear is probably lost underneath the crib. So, Mom and Claudia get on the floor underneath the crib. Mom said – “Claudia, where’s teddy bear? I don’t see him.” Claudia looked and said – “I don’t know.” So they look again, she look in the crib and they find underneath Claudia’s blanket – her favorite teddy bear. So, Mom pulls it out of the crib, gives it to Claudia. Claudia gives bear a big hug and says – “Thank you Mama.” Their morning has started but Mom is looking forward to a nap later on in the day.
The mommy woke up and then she went and woke up the baby. And then she took the baby and they played peek-a-boo with the blanket, and then they were laughing. And then the mommy and the baby hugged and the baby smiled. So the mommy and the baby hugged and then the mommy read the baby a story. And they pretended that they were in the story and they were having fun. And then the little baby was playing with her teddy bear and she lost the teddy bear and she couldn't find it, she got upset, so the mommy and the baby went looking for the teddy bear and then they found it. And then it was time for a nap and the baby was hugging the teddy bear that she had found and she used the blanket from before.
A typical baby’s morning at my house is as the mother, I wake up and I get the baby out of the crib and we play and Nicholas, my baby, likes to play peek a boo with his blanket. So we play that for a little while. He smiles and has such a great time. He likes to hug so we get up and after we’re done playing he likes to read stores. So we read all these wonderful Sesame Street stories and Arthur stories and then his older brother likes to come in with him. They play a great game of pretend where they take this teddy bear and they pretend that he’s a pirate and that they’re on this great pirate ship and they do this for a little while. The older boy Johnny, sometimes he gets a little rough with little Nicholas and he hides the teddy bear. So they play this game of lost and found where Johnny kind of loses the teddy bear, until Nicholas gets hysterical, and then Johnny, the hero, finds it. Then, for Mom’s serenity, it’s nap time and she puts everybody to bed and then she gets to take her own nap.
Baby’s Morning

Six-thirty in the morning, and mommy hears baby start to cry. So, typical, everyday he gets up at six-thirty and she goes in. And, well, she goes to the kitchen first, and gets him a bottle of milk. And she warms it and she goes back in and Alexander’s standing up in his crib. And with a huge smile on his face. He’s so happy to see mommy. He’s waited and waited and waited. He thinks it’s about time to get up so he lifts his arms up way above his head and waits for mommy to pick him up. Mommy reaches down and picks him up. And immediately he reaches right for his milk. So, he’s kind of happy; content with his milk. And after he’s done drinking the milk, mommy and Alexander go into the family room and Alexander wants to play now because he’s wide awake, has a full tummy of warm milk. So he goes into the family room and he sees all his toys that he left from last night. Of course mommy tried to clean them up, but there may be a stray one around. So, first he goes to find his fire engine. And he starts playing and he’s having a great time. By this time he can even, you know, he can even sit on it. And he pushes all the buttons and is having just a beautiful time. And mommy’s just standing there still trying to wake up. She’s still groggy a little bit because six-thirty is kind of early in the morning. But anyway, they play for awhile and he’s smiling; he’s happy. So after he’s done playing with his fire engine, mommy sees some books out there. So she decides to tell him a story. And as Alexander is, he doesn’t always like to listen to the story, he just likes to play with the books and close the books. And he giggles and has a good time. So, then he sees a teddy bear. And he sees the teddy bear and he runs over to it. And he kind of flops on the teddy bear and gives it a great big hug. And he smiles and gets up and mommy is pretty much awake now because it is later in the morning. They’ve played for a good, long time. And now he wants his juice. He wants his juice, but mommy says, “No, you can’t have your juice. We gotta get ya…we have to get you some breakfast.” So off they go, and they get some breakfast and Alexander is sitting in his highchair and he’s eating his toast and his oatmeal. And all of the sudden, he starts to throw it on the ground. Mommy says, “Uh-oh. This may be a good sign that Alexander has a full belly.” So, then they decide to go in and we play some more. And now we start to pretend. Mommy gets down on her hands and knees and starts to roar like a lion. Because Alexander it’s coming up for Halloween…he’s gonna be a lion for Halloween. So, mommy’s trying to teach him how to roar. So they’re playing and she’s pretending and she’s having a great time. And then, Alexander, all of the sudden, can’t find his favorite lion. Mommy has a little stuffed animal lion for him that she’s been playing with. He can’t find it. He’s looking all around. So, uppy up the one step he goes in his room. And then he comes out with another big smile because he’s usually pretty smilely. He comes out and he has his big lion with a big ruff on it. And he’s carrying it around by the tail. It’s pretty much dragging on the floor but, you know, it’s Alexander and he’s not that big yet. But he does his best to carry everything around. So he comes back in the family room and he looks at mommy and starts to moan a little bit like he wants his juice. So she gives him his juice. And then she says, “You know, it’s getting late in the morning. You probably want your nap.” And he starts rubbing his eyes. And he takes his juice and lays down on the floor. She says, mommy says, “This is a good time for a nap.” So, she picks up Alexander and gives him a great big hug and lots of kisses all over. And takes him back into his room; talks to him and plays with him for another minute; puts him in his crib and puts him down for a nap. All of the sudden, Alexander puts his little head down on the mattress and says…or doesn’t say it, but mommy says, “This is a good time and you’re awful tired. So, I’m gonna leave you now but I’ll be back in awhile. So you have a good nap and you have nice, wonderful dreams.” So off to la-la-land he goes. The end.
Baby’s Morning

Lauren woke up early in the morning. She threw her blankie out of her crib and started saying, “Momma. Momma.” So Mommy came, and she saw her with a big smile on her face. Lauren put her arms up, and Mommy took Lauren out of the crib, and Lauren pointed to her blanket. So Mommy knew that she wanted the blanket. So Mommy picked the blanket up. They sat down in the chair to give her a bottle, and Lauren pointed to the book. So Mommy knew that Lauren wanted her to read her the story. So they took the story, and Mommy read the story, and Lauren was pointing to all of the pictures on the book, and Mommy pretended to tell her a different story with the same pictures. So they read the whole book, and then Lauren had her bottle, and then she pointed to the floor. She wanted to play. So she went down on the floor, and she looked in the mirrors, and she went to her toybox, and she opened her toybox, and she pointed to the teddy bear. “Wow, that was the teddy bear we had lost last night. It was in the toy box the whole time. We finally found it,” said Mommy. So they went about their whole morning, and as Lauren was playing, she came over to Mommy a few times and gave her hugs and kisses, and Mommy loves it when she gets hugs and kisses from Lauren. They played, and played, and played, and finally it was time for a nap. So Mommy went to get a bottle and sat Lauren in a chair. Lauren pointed to the story again, and they read another story, and they pretended again that the pictures were different things. They read the whole story. Lauren gave Mommy kisses, and a smile, and we put her down for her nap.
Once upon a time, there was a mother. She was holding her baby in a really fluffy blanket. The baby got squirmy. He wanted to get out of his blanket and play so she put him on the floor. He looked at her with a smile. She began to tell him a story. The story was about a teddy bear. The teddy bear was playing pretend so the baby and the teddy bear gave each other a hug. The mommy said, “Uh oh … the baby lost her teddy bear.” And then she found it and the baby gave a big smile. The baby wanted to take a nap because she was yawning so the mom put her back in the crib and out the fluffy blanket on top of her. The end.
The baby got up this morning and I took her out of the crib and she wanted to play for a little while. She was playing under her blanket and she got up, and we hugged for a little bit, and got some breakfast. Her mother smiled at her. After that they decided to read a story. They read a Winnie the Pooh story. It was about pretending. She was hugging her teddy bear. They were playing with the teddy bear. Then the dog came up and grabbed the teddy bear and ran off with it and they couldn’t find the teddy bear. The mommy and the baby were looking for the teddy bear all over and it was lost. They couldn’t find it because the dog took off with it. They were looking all around and they finally went to the back of the house, and in the dog house they found that the dog put the teddy bear in the dog house. After that the baby was tired and she had to go down for a nap.
Tommy was very excited to go play with his new bike. He had just gotten the training wheels off and couldn’t wait to ride in the street by himself. Up and down the driveway he went. When he did go into the street, he didn’t see the rocks, fell over and got hurt. Crying out for his mother, she ran to him, picked him up and cleaned him off. Unsure about the extent of his injuries, she took him to the family doctor. Tommy cried and said, “I don’t want to go see the doctor.” It wasn’t usually a pleasant experience. Once he got there, the doctor also cleaned him up and told Tommy he had to get a shot. Tommy was very unhappy about this and his mother held him while he got the shot. He played with a toy to distract him from the shot. Once the shot was over and after a quick hug, the crying stopped, the cuts healed, and Tommy felt better. Later on, he went on his bike again.
It was Tommy’s 10th birthday and he just received his new dirtbike. He was so excited he ran to the woods to test it on the big trails and do some jumps. Mother warned him, “You better be careful and don’t you get hurt.” Tommy said, “Don’t worry Mom, I’ll be fine.” Tommy sped off on his bicycle; meeting his friends and driving off to the trails. He rode his bike along jumping the trails. All the sudden, he did a jump and fell forward and cut his knee on a rusty nail. Tommy cried. He hurried home and told his mother, “Mom, I fell off my bike on a rusty nail.” Mother stopped and held Tommy and washed out his wounds. She said, “We better just take you to the doctor just in case. You might need a tetanus shot.” Tommy stopped crying and said, “Ok mom.” She said, “Don’t worry. There are worse things that could happen on your birthday I suppose.” So, they went off to the doctor’s office. And sure enough, it was just a little cut. It didn’t need any stitches. So Tommy was happy about that. Although, he did have to get a tetanus shot in his arm. Tommy didn’t cry. And on the way home they stopped off at Friendly’s for an ice cream. And mom says, “Well, if your bike is broken, maybe we’ll stop and get you a nice, little, quiet toy that you can play instead of going out on the trails, until your bike is fixed.” So they stopped off and Tommy bought a nice, little videogame and went home with his mother and rested on the couch, playing his new videogame. And he said, “Thank you mom.”
It was a beautiful sunny morning and little Tommy woke up and wanted to go outside and play, but swing set was still wet from the morning dew. So the mommy decided to go get his bike out. Tommy was happy and took his bike and together they rode their bikes down the street. When little Tommy was going a little bit too fast down the hill, the bike fell over and he fell and he got hurt on his knee. The mother thought it was just a little scrape. But when she looked at the leg, she realized that it was much worse than a scrape and lots of blood came out so the little boy was scared. The mommy picked him up and took him back home. She reassured him and he was calm but then she decided that she better take him to the doctor to go get it checked out, to make sure there wasn’t any infection or nothing bad. So, the mother called up the doctor and the boy got scared. And Tommy started to cry. The mommy began to reassure him and together they went to the doctor’s to make sure that everything was fine. The doctor looked at the cut and realized it was not as bad as it seemed. It just looked like a lot of blood even though it wasn’t so the boy was happy, “But” the doctor said, “You must get a shot to make sure that there is no infection.” The boy was scared but the mommy held his hand and together he got the shot and he was all done. And he felt much better when the shot was all done. The mom was very proud of him and decided not only did he get the lollipop after the doctor appointment but he deserved a toy. So together, they went to the toy store even though he was limping a little bit from his knee. They went to the toy store and they looked at all the toys and he was just thrilled. He didn’t know what toy he wanted. So he walked up and down the aisle until he found a toy of a doctor. So he stopped and said he would like that toy of the doctor because he wants to be a doctor when he gets older, to help all the little kids feel better and to not be hurt. So he took the toy doctor doll and we bought it and he paid for it and he held it and he was very happy with it. And he went home and he rested and his knee felt better. As he was holding his doctor doll and pretending to be a doctor and he cured all of his animals at home. The End.
Tommy and his little friend were riding their bikes in the street one day. They were having a great time. They were going over jumps and doing all the things that boys love to do. All of a sudden, Tommy hit a rock and his bike fell over. His friend panicked because Tommy was crying and there was blood everywhere. So he ran in to tell his mother and said, “Hurry Mom! Hurry! Tommy fell off his bike and there’s blood.” With that, the mother ran outside and saw Tommy crying. She told him not to worry as she wiped the blood away from his knee; realized it was just a cut. Still, he was taken to the doctor just to have it looked at to make sure he didn’t need stitches. So she brings Tommy, puts him in the car and they drive to the hospital where the doctor decides to give Tommy a tetanus shot just in case it gets infected or there was any problem with dirt getting in the wound. The mother called Tommy’s mother to let her know what she did and the mother was at work so the mother met them at the hospital. And she brought her little son a toy because she knew that he was upset and frazzled from the little accident. But she knew that he would be fine. When she got there, Tommy started crying again from just seeing his mother. It made him more upset. And she walked in and just held her son’s hand as he wept on her shoulder. And Tommy was released that day. And they just went home, back to the house, and had some milk and cookies. Tommy told the story to his daddy and mommy, and he was happy to have his friend there with him. His mommy tucked him into bed and said good-night and he went to sleep.
Tommy got hurt on his bike and he ran to his mother. She said that they had to hurry to the doctor. Tommy started to cry because he thought he was going to get a shot. His mother told him that he wasn’t going to get a shot and if he was a good boy she would buy him a toy. He stopped crying and his mom was able to hold him through the whole thing and he was fine.
Tommy got hurt while riding his bike. He fell off and got a boo-boo. The mother was gonna hurry over to the doctor’s office because of his boo-boo and his crying, but she decided that they have their 18-month check-up the next day, that she wasn’t gonna do that. She would just wait until tomorrow to have him checked out since he stopped crying after about five minutes. So, the next day came and the mom took Tommy to his appointment. And he had to have a shot. So, the mother placed Tommy on her lap and held him in her arms while the doctor put the shot in his leg. And he cried for about a minute but then he stopped and he was fine.
One day Tommy wanted to go outside to ride his bike. His mother said that he should be careful and not ride too fast because she always wanted to know where he was going, but Tommy was in a hurry to get to his friends house and he didn’t listen to mother. He got on his bike and rode as fast as he could. Faster and Faster he went down the hill enjoying the experience of riding really fast. He decided to take his hands off the handle bars and stretch them out like he was on a plane. Unfortunately there was a bump in the road and Tommy flew off his bicycle and landed on a fence and got a bad cut. He went home crying to his mom that he hurt himself. His mother took one look at the bad cut and took him to the doctor. Tommy didn’t like the doctor because he was always afraid that he was going to have to get a shot. Tommy’s mom said, “don’t worry, I’ll be there the whole time with you and I’ll help take care of you.” So, Tommy went to the doctor’s office with his mother and went to see the doctor. The doctor was very friendly and he had known Tommy ever since he was a little baby. He said, “Hi Tommy, what happened?” Tommy said, “well I fell off my bike and I landed on a fence.” So the doctor said, “let me look at that cut for you.” The doctor looked at the cut, cleaned it out, and put a bandage on it. Then the doctor said, “Well, Tommy, because it was a fence, we’re going to have to give you a special shot, called a tetanus shot. This is so you won’t get any bad diseases.” Tommy started to cry. “I don’t want a shot, I don’t want a shot.” His mother said, “Don’t worry Tommy I’ll hold you and if you’re very very brave, then afterwards we can get a toy at the corner store.” Tommy stopped crying and said to his mother, “I’ll stop crying, please just hold me.” Tommy and his mom clung tightly together and the doctor gave the shot. In a second it was over. Tommy said, “That wasn’t so bad. Let’s go get a toy, I want the new Power Rangers.” Tommy and his mom left the office smiling together and holding hands.
One sunny afternoon in the summer Tommy was riding his bike up and down the street. His mother was yelling and yelling - “Tommy, Tommy, put your helmet on!!”, but Tommy was not listening. Tommy’s mommy even said - “Tommy, it’s the law, you must where your helmet when you ride your bike!”, but Tommy just didn’t listen. He rode his bike up and down the street and hit a rock. He fell off the bike and banged his head and hurt himself. Well Tommy’s mother hurried, hurried, hurried and took him to the doctor because Tommy was crying and crying. When he got to the doctor, the doctor said - “Boy, you have a big bump. I need to give you a shot in the arm to make that bump go away.”. Tommy’s mother held him very very tight while the doctor gave him a shot in the arm. Once the doctor gave him a shot in the arm, he said - “Tommy, you’ll feel much better, here’s a toy and you can go home, and thank you for being such a good patient.”. So Tommy’s mother put Tommy in the car and put his seat belt on and they drove all the way home. When they first got home, they stopped in the driveway and Tommy’s mother said - “Now Tommy, will you please wear your helmet when you ride your bike?”, and Tommy said - “Yes.”.
Tommy was riding his bike with a friend. And the bike skidded out and Tommy fell and hurt his hand on a nail. The mother heard Tommy crying from the house and went running out to see what had happened. She saw blood on his hand, started to panic and said, “Hurry let’s go.” She picked Tommy up, ran into the house and quickly called the doctor. And the doctor said “bring him right in.” Tommy cried the whole way to the doctor’s office and the mother was trying to soothe him, saying “It’s okay.” She had given him a wash cloth to wrap around it until they got to the doctor. When they got to the doctor’s office, the doctor looked and decided that he’s going to need a tetanus shot because it looked like it punctured pretty deep. So Tommy began to cry again, hearing the word “shot.” And the mother said, “Don’t worry, as soon as we’re done, we’re gonna go to the toy store and buy you something special. You’re gonna be a brave boy.” So he held his mother’s hand with the other hand, and got the tetanus shot. And mother said, “Okay, it’s time to go, we’ll go buy a toy.” But Tommy said, “Stop mom, I just really need you to hold me.” So mom stopped, gave him a big hug, and then took him out to buy a toy.
Tommy was riding his bike this day like he did everyday. Except this day he tried to be a daredevil going up a ramp. He fell down and hurt himself. He ran over to his mother and mother hurried him to the doctor. The doctor said that Tommy would need a shot and Tommy began to cry. The mother held the child while the doctor gave him a shot. She said that we would go and stop at the toy store to by him a toy afterwards to make him feel better.
Tommy was riding his bicycle out front, in front of his house on the dead end street where he lived. It was an older bike that he had been given from a neighbor. It was a little rusty, but it was fun to ride. As he was riding along the curb, he rode over a rock and it made the bicycle lose balance, and he fell off. He hurt his arm. It seemed that he had a cut and a little bit of a bruise. He began to cry, and his mother who had been watching from inside the house, hurried out to see what was wrong. She took a look at his scrapes and decided that it would be best to take him to the doctor to have it checked out. Tommy was crying. He said it hurt very much and he seemed a little scared. When they arrived at the doctor’s office, the doctor examined Tommy’s wounds to see what kind of care he would need. Because the bike had been a little bit rusty and had scraped Tommy, the doctor decided to give him a tetanus shot just to be safe. Sometimes those shots can hurt, so the mother held on to Tommy very very tightly, so that he would not be afraid when the doctor gave him a shot. Because he was such a good boy in the doctor’s office, he got a little toy when he was ready to leave. On the way home, as Tommy was feeling a little bit better, they stopped at the bicycle store to pick up a spare part to fix his bicycle that had been broken because he was anxious to get riding again.
Megan and her mother went to the doctor on Tuesday morning for Megan’s well-being visit. And this is the visit where she knows that she is going to get a shot. But Megan doesn’t really know that she is getting the shot because she is a little bit too young to understand why she is there at the doctor’s office. When they got there, Megan was really happy. It was a new place, it was cool, it had toys, and it had people and Megan was such a social little girl. She thought that this was the best thing. And she sat on the floor and played with some toys. And then the door opened. A little boy crying, sobbing so hard, Megan turned around and went up to the little boy and said, “What’s wrong?” And the little boy said, “I fell off my bike and hurt my knee really bad. My mommy said that I needed to go to the doctor, so that he can help me.” Megan said, “Don’t worry. You’ll be fine. Just hold onto my hand and we’ll be okay. Here come and play with my toys. Don’t worry, everything will be great.” And Tommy gave Megan a big hug and that was the end of the story. They lived happily ever after.
Tommy was roaring around on his bicycle in the driveway, going at very high speeds, while his mother was reading the newspaper in the lawn chair. She was kind of watching over him. All of a sudden, he hit a curb on the driveway and he fell off his bike. It was obvious that he was hurt. His mother, tried as usual, not to make a big deal out of it because it was obvious Tommy looked at her to see if there was going to be some kind of reaction. That depended whether he should cry and get upset or not. So, she tried to stay calm, but it was obvious to her that something was wrong and that he was hurt. So, showing as little fright as possible, she hurried him to the doctor, the pediatrician. He was crying for part of the way in the car, but then he stopped. When he got to the doctor’s they found it necessary to give him a shot because there was some possibility of infection. They asked the mother to hold Tommy’s hand and make sure that he sat still while he was being given the shot. He did beautifully with the shot. He didn’t cry. He wasn’t afraid of the doctor’s office. When he was all cleaned up and prepared, so to speak, the mother stopped holding on to him tightly and brought him home. They talked about what kinds of things they could do to be a little more careful, so that this wouldn’t happen again. He listened and he understood. He went into the garage and took out another toy and continued to play with that.
Tommy was riding his bike along the street when he hit a bump that was caused in the sidewalk by roots from the tree. He fell down and hurt his knee. It was right outside his house and he was crying so his mother came running out. And she hurried after him to see what the problem was. When she could see that a little, tiny branch had poked into his skin, she decided to take him to the doctor to just make sure that nothing was wrong. The doctor said that he should have a tetanus shot just to be sure that there was no problem. And he started to cry when he hear shot. The mother held on to him and told him that it would be ok; it would only take a second of a pinch and it would make sure that he doesn’t get sick. The nurse brought in a toy to help distract him and he was playing with the busy bee toy to keep himself busy. Before he even noticed, the shot was over and he climbed down off the table and said that he was feeling much better. The doctor gave him a little bandage and told him to make sure that he didn’t get any dirt in it and it would be fine in a couple of days.
Tommy was riding his bike outside of the house when he fell. He started screaming, calling for his mother. She ran outside and found him on the sidewalk. He had gotten a piece of glass in his leg. She hurried him to the doctor. He was crying, it was very painful. He cried even more when the doctor told him he’d need a shot to make sure he didn’t get an infection. Tommy was very much afraid of the needles and didn’t like to get shots. He had already had the glass taken out and that hurt enough. He thought that should be all. Mother told him if he was a good boy they’d stop on the way home for a special treat. That made him feel a little better. It also made him feel good that the doctor let his mom hold him during the shot, which they normally don’t let you do.
Tommy fell off from his bike and got hurt. His mother was so worried that she hurried him to the doctor’s office. But the doctor examined Tommy and said nothing serious. One shot and a couple of days rest will do it. Tommy wanted to be a brave boy so he didn’t cry when the doctor gave him a shot. On the way home, Tommy’s mother was so proud of him that they stopped at a toy shop to buy him a new toy. Tommy was so happy that he had his new toy and gave his mother a big hug.
One day Tommy was playing on his bike with his friends when he went around a corner too fast and his bike slid on some sand. Tommy ended up getting hurt because he skinned both his knees; one of them pretty badly. He ran into his mother and said, “Hurry Mommy! You have to take me to the doctor.” As Tommy was crying hysterical, Mommy looked down and realized that the boo-boo wasn’t as bad as she thought but that Tommy was probably going to need a tetanus shot since he had slid and cut himself on a rusty nail. After Mommy convinced Tommy to stop crying, she said that they had to hurry to go to the doctor’s office but if Tommy was a big boy that his mommy would buy him a toy after it was all over. Tommy was still crying by the time they got to the doctor’s office and his mommy told him he had to stop crying and listen to what the doctor said. They went into the doctor’s office and Tommy’s mother had to help hold Tommy down so he could get the shot. Tommy was very upset by this and started to cry even harder. The doctor asked Tommy, “Tommy, what happened?” Tommy told him he was riding on his bike and hit a patch of sand and slid off his bike and hurt himself. The doctor asked Tommy if he was wearing his helmet. “Yes”, replied Tommy. The doctor was so happy to hear that Tommy wore his helmet, that he told Tommy he too would give him a little toy surprise. But what Tommy didn’t realize was that the doctor was holding him down and giving him the needle as he was asking him about his helmet. The next thing Tommy knew, he was given his shot and it was all over. Tommy was so happy he stopped crying, gave his mommy a hug, and asked if he could go home now. The doctor gave him his toy and his mom took him to the toy store on the way home to buy whatever he wanted since he was such a big boy. “Am I going to be able to ride my bike tomorrow?” asked Tommy when they got home. “As long as you wear your helmet”, his mother replied.
Tommy was riding his bicycle and he got hurt when he fell down, and he hurt his knee and he went crying to his mother. And the mother got upset and she hurried him to the doctor because he was bleeding. And Tommy was crying because he was upset he was going to the doctor and he was afraid he was going to be getting a shot. And his mother picked up a toy to try to make him stop crying, and while he was playing he forgot to cry, so he stopped. And he was holding the toy and that made him happy and he went to see the doctor.
The Doctor’s Office

Tommy was out riding his bike like he does every day after school, when he fell down and he hurt his knee. His knee was hurt pretty bad and his mother thought they should really hurry to the doctor where the doctor could take a look at it. Because it hurt a little bit the first time he had to go to the doctor he began to cry. He didn’t really like going to the doctor because he remembered all of the other times before when the doctor would him a shot which hurt. But his mother assured him that this doctor would be a little different and that Tommy wouldn’t be receiving any shots today. On the way to the doctor’s office the mother wanted to make Tommy feel a little bit better about the upcoming visit so she stopped at a toy store and bought him a big brown teddy bear, something for him to hold during the doctor visit.
One day, Tommy was outside riding his bike when he hit a curb... fell off and got very hurt. His mother looking out the window hurried to his side where Tommy laid crying clutching his knee—clutching his knee which was badly hurt. The mother decided that Tommy should go immediately to the doctor which made Tommy cry even more- which made Tommy cry even more because he did not like going to the doctor. He always associated the doctor with getting a shot. His mother assured him that he would not get a shot... that he would just get his knees looked at and bandaged and if he was good, his mother would buy him a toy to help ease the doctor anxiety. Tommy decided to stop crying and hold back the tears and go to the doctor and get his bandage and go home with his toy.
Jane and Bob Smith were going away for a weekend with their old college friends so they were packing their bags. But of course, Bob came home late from work as always. So they were in a huge hurry to get there in time. They finally got up to the Catskills to meet their friends. When they got there, the typical situation, their friend Joe forgot the tent. So, they had to borrow a tent or share a tent with their other friends who are big tent hogs and they have a difficult time sharing space with them to begin with. And then the situation got that much worse when the wind started picking up and then the whole tent collapsed on top of them. Everybody was so upset, complete uproar, chaos, running around, trying to figure out what to do next. They just couldn't so they decided - 'You know what, let's just have fun. Let's go build a campfire, sit around the camp fire, and let's be silly with some ghost stories- get some ghost stories going. And they were just playing around, telling some ghost stories and drinking a little bit. Their minds started playing some tricks on them. And they started seeing some shadows in the distance and thinking - 'Oh God, what is going on here?'. And then they heard some sounds and then it seemed like Blair Witch all over again but in real life. But then they realized that it was just their friend who had been playing around behind the bushes. Just playing a stupid joke on them and they all hugged with relief that it was nothing but just a silly situation.
One weekend Jane and Bob decided to go camping. They decided they would go up to the mountains in South Dakota. It was a long ride to go to South Dakota for a camping trip, but they wanted to go to this place called the Bad Lands. They packed their bags as quickly as they could and loaded up the car and the dog and the cat and they drove to South Dakota to go to the Bad Lands to go camping. They forgot their tent. As they were driving down the road they said - Uh oh, forgot the tent! Gotta go back! So they went back and they got the tent, put the tent in the car and they started driving again. This time they drove all the way to South Dakota to the Bad Lands. At the Bad Lands, it was windy, but they said - That’s okay, we can use out tent. They staked up their tent on this big flat piece of land on a camp ground called the KOA. The KOA people said - Ya know what? We’re going to have a pancake breakfast in the morning, so stake your tent down because it’s real windy. They staked their tent down and they set up their sleeping bags and put out all their gear, they cooked their dinner and ate and they crawled into the sleeping bag and the tent collapsed. They didn’t know what to do. Jane and Bob got all upset and the dog and the cat said - Don’t worry, we’ll fix it. They went outside and they put the stakes back in and all four of them fixed the tent. Jane decided she was cold. Bob said - Don’t worry, we’ll build a camp fire. They built a camp fire. As the fire got bigger, the shadows from the trees started to make funny shapes on the ground and they danced around. The sounds from the outside, from the wolves and the other animals started to scare Jane and Bob and the cat and dog. They made a big group hug and hugged each other, and then they went to bed.
Jane and Bob planned a camping trip and Jane wasn't too happy about it. She wasn't sure if she would enjoy it, but Bob said - "let's go, let's go, it'll be fun.". They packed their bags and off they went. When they got to the camp site they had to set up the tent and they weren't sure how to set it up. They did the instructions and it seemed like it was set up fine, until a storm decided to come. Now Jane was very upset and the wind was howling and the tent decided to collapse. Well they put the tent back up and it was okay but Jane was still upset and thought this wasn't a good trip. When night time came they decided to build a camp fire. Jane heard a lot of sounds and thought that there were wild animals in the woods and still thought this wasn't a good idea. She saw shadows but Bob calmed her and said this is camping. It's animals. They're fine. They won't hurt us and he hugged and kissed her and she said this is okay. If this is something you want to do then we can do it. That was the end of the trip.
Jane and Bob’s Camping Trip

Jane and Bob were all excited cause for their first year anniversary they were going on a camping trip to the Adirondacks. And Jane and Bob had woken up early and decided they were gonna pack up the car and head up to the north country. Jane, unfortunately, had quite a few bags to pack in the car. And Bob kept yelling for her to hurry up because traffic was starting to build on the roadway. They finally packed all the bags in the car, and they went to, they found their campsite. When they got to the campsite, they set up the tent, and they went for a long walk in the woods to enjoy the out of doors. When they came back, they made a campfire, and sat near the campfire. And there were many sounds that were going on at the campfire, in the hillside; sounds like coyotes, and wolves, and all sorts of things. And Jane was very upset, because there were shadows that were playing on the side of the tent. But that’s okay because Bob said, “There’s nothing out there to be afraid of.” They decided they were gonna go to bed. So they go to bed. And a big storm had come in to the area, and they didn’t realize that a big storm was coming. And the wind started to howl like those coyotes and those wolves, and the tent started flapping around. It flapped so hard that it collapsed right on top of Jane and Bob. And Jane was so upset that their anniversary trip was ruined. But Bob looked at her, gave her a big hug and said, “Don’t worry honey, this will be an anniversary to remember.”
Jane and Bob went on a camping trip with a lot of stuff. They brought bags and they were in a hurry. They tried to put up the tent fast because it was raining. The wind was blowing and the tent collapsed. They were very upset. Then they had to make a camp fire and they were very nervous because there were shadows and sounds and the only thing they could do to keep themselves from being afraid was to hug each other.
Jane and Bob were planning a camping trip and Jane packed too many bags. Bob was in a hurry because it was getting dark and he wanted to set up the tent. They both knew that it was getting windy but they didn’t realize how quick, all of a sudden the clouds came in. The wind started blowing and their tent collapsed right in the middle of setting it up. They were both upset because they were tired after rush hour traffic. But then the wind died down, the rain stopped. It was just a quick storm so they set up their campfire and they watched the shadows as the fire glowed on the rocks, and they heard the relaxing sounds of the campground. And they hugged and were happy they made the trip.
Jane and Bob's Camping Trip

Jane and Bob decided to take a camping trip. Jane has never been camping before and Bob thinks they'd have a lot of fun going on a trip together so they decided to get ready and go. They packed a tent and some food. Bob makes Jane hurry because she's taking too long to pack everything. They throw their things in the car and drive Upstate to Bear Mountain and they set up their tent and get out their sleeping bags and they go fishing. When they are done fishing Bob shows Jane how to clean the fish and they make a little campfire. They are having a great time until it gets very very windy. They didn't put the tent up as well as they should have and the wind collapses their tent which is a bit of a bummer. They put that back up together and it starts getting darker and darker. They sit around the campfire watching the shadows that the light throws onto the ground and they are having a good old time. Then Jane starts getting very upset at the strange sounds she hears. She's from an urban area and is not used to the sounds of nature. So she sits closer to Bob and Bob gives her a hug and calms her down and they just sit around the campfire for a little longer until they get sleepy. Then they went to sleep for the night.
Jane and Bob’s Camping Trip

It had been a very, very difficult week at work. Bob decided they needed to get away. So he asked his wife Jane if she wanted to go camping and she said, “Sure, sure.” So they had a little bit of land Upstate. They figured they’d pack everything up and go for a trip for the weekend. A nice little get away. Set up camp and try to enjoy nature and forget about all the worries from the work week. So Jane packed up all the bags and they hurried up out of the city. Driving Upstate takes a couple of hours. Nice leisurely. You get kind of tired of all that driving, but it’s nice looking at the trees and seeing all the sights. Beautiful mountains. Everything as you go Upstate. They got to the property and before they could set up the tent Bob had to mow the lawn because it had been a while since they’d been up there. So Bob mowed and cleared an area and then they set up the tent and had to clean that out, too because it had been a while since they’d used it. So they cleaned everything up a little bit. It started to get windy. Hopefully the tent wouldn’t collapse but they felt pretty secure in there for now. So they were both still a little upset about the week. It had been really pretty awful at work. But they set up a campfire and they went fishing and caught a little fish for dinner. And of course they brought the marshmallows, graham crackers, and chocolate bars so they had some smores for dessert. That pretty much makes anybody feel better. So they put out the fire after dinner and they went inside to go to sleep or to snuggle a little bit. They saw some shadows lurking outside. Of course Jane nudges Bob, “Bob go check it! What’s going on? I hear things!” He went outside and it was just a little raccoon. You know the way the night plays tricks on you and you think it’s something so much bigger like a bear. But it’s just a racoon and he ran away. So Bob went back into the tent and they hugged. “Oh Bob, thank you, you saved me!” He said, “No Jane, it was just a little raccoon.” In her eyes, he was a hero anyway. They enjoyed their weekend and relaxed and just (??). Being one with nature and hated having to go back home but sure enough everybody had to go back to work on Monday. So they packed up and went home. Luckily it was to be hopefully a much better week.
with no stresses at a week at work.
Jane and Bob’s Camping Trip

Jane and Bob had just gotten married and they decided to do something kind of unusual for their honeymoon. So they decided to go on a camping trip. So they packed their bags and went up to Vermont where it was really nice. It’s really nice up there in the summertime to go mountain climbing and hiking. So once they got up there they set up their tent. They were very anxious so they hurried and set up their tent. Later that day it got kind of windy, while Jane and Bob was out exploring a little bit it got kind of windy. And the wind blew the tent over and it collapsed. Upon returning to the campsite, Jane and Bob were upset to see their tent blown over. However, they put it back together and was happy later on. They were in such good spirits that they built a campfire. And sat around it talking to each other, looking at the light and shadows that were bouncing around, saying how pretty that was. And how nice the sounds of the country was, wood crackling and the crickets. They were so happy. And, of course, they were newlyweds. They started hugging and kissing and blah, blah, blah. The End.
Bob was an avid camper. He convinced his friend Jane to take a trip with him one day. Jane, being a novice, decided that she was going to bring bags and bags of clothes and food and what not on the camping trip. After Bob convinced Jane to leave some of the bags at home, the two of them rushed to the campsite because the storm looked like it was closing in. Bob and Jane set up a tent. It became windy after some time as the sky grew dark and the rain was nearing. The wind, being so strong, collapsed the tent and Bob and Jane were both pretty upset that now they wouldn’t have a place to sleep. After some time, the storm seemed to pass and Bob and Jane were able to set up their tent once again. As they relaxed a little bit they decided to build a campfire. The campfire felt great and Bob and Jane sat around talking for quite some time. Jane, not being too comfortable out in the wilderness, became leery of some shadows and sounds that she saw and heard. Bob reassured her that the shadows were only cast from the campfire and the sounds she was hearing were probably from animals that were quite far away in the distance and she wouldn’t need to worry. Bob gave Jane a big hug reassuring her that things would be fine and they enjoyed the rest of their night out in the wilderness.
It was Jane and Bob’s first camping trip. It was the first outing that they had in weeks without the children. They were both looking forward to it and wanted everything to be perfect. It was Jane’s job to pack the bags and Bob’s job was to load up the car and of course get the kids ready to bring to his mother-in-laws house. They were in no hurry because they wanted everything to be perfect. On the way to the camp grounds, after they dropped the children off, Jane and Bob had a chance to talk and relax and listen to the music that they enjoyed rather than listening to the Barney tapes and Hercules tapes, so they were both excited. When they got to the campgrounds, they had no problems getting there because that was a job in itself. It was time to set up the tent. Jane looked at the pile of stuff and didn’t know how to assemble it, but Bob assured her that he knew what to do. Together they figured out how to set up the tent. They weren’t hungry so they decided to take a little walk and they got to know each other better. They were walking through the woods and it was nice and calm. They were holding hands and this was a chance just for them to be alone together. They decided to go back to the campsite and have a little lunch. Bob decided to surprise Jane with a nice Champagne lunch, packed a little grapes, some wine, and they just talked. Little did they realize that the wind started to pick up. As they were talking, they got lost in their conversation and didn’t realize that the tent collapsed. Jane was upset because it took a long time to put together. Bob reassured her that there was no problem and that they’d figure out how to put it back together again and they were able to. Jane decided that before it got dark, being that it was her first time and she was afraid of being out in the woods, that they should start the campfire. So, they went out and rummaged for some kindling and started a campfire and decided to have some hotdogs for dinner. After the hotdogs the roasted some marshmallows and reminisced about the old days when there were no children and they were just dating, there was no mortgage to worry about. They were just both relaxed.
They lost track of time and it became dark. The trees were just casting beautiful shadows and the crickets were chirping. It was just nice, calming and relaxing. The sounds of nature was just perfect in the night. They both hugged and kissed and decided to go to sleep, so they could start fresh in the morning and that was their first day of the camping trip.
Jane and Bob’s Camping Trip

Jane and Bob decided to go camping for their summer vacation. They packed their bags and hurried out to the car. There were clouds coming in and they wanted to make it up to the campsite before the storm started. When they arrived at the campsite, they decided to put up their tent right away. It began to get windy. When they were almost finished putting up the tent, it collapsed with the weather. Jane was very upset. Bob decided to build a campfire nearby. Jane sat on a nearby rock and saw a shadow and heard some sounds. She began to scream. Bob realized it was just a squirrel that Jane had seen, came over and gave her a big hug, and reassured her that everything was okay.
Jane and Bob decided to go on a camping trip. It was their first camping trip together, so they really didn't know what to bring. They packed their bags and in a hurry, they drove upstate to go camping. On the way, they picked up a tent and picked out their camp ground. When they got to their camp ground they set up the tent and anchored it down the best they could. As soon as they got all their stuff set-up and started to relax, the wind started to pick up. So Jane and Bob ran into their tent for cover. Since they had never gone camping before, they didn't put the tent together the right way, because Bob doesn't like to read directions. The tent collapsed on top of them. It started to rain and Jane got so upset she started crying. Bob tried to make her feel better by lighting a campfire. They sat in front of the fire and toasted marshmallows. Jane felt a little better after Bob decided to read the directions and set the tent up correctly. It stopped raining and they sat by the campfire roasting marshmallows and talking about what a beautiful night it was. After sitting there for awhile it started to get darker and they noticed a shadow in the background. Jane got very frightened and sat on Bob's lap to make herself feel better. Bob decided to go take a look and see what the shadow was. While looking, he heard some sounds, so he decided to investigate and checked them out. Behind the trees, Bob and Jane noticed a family of raccoons going through a garbage pail. They decided to leave them alone and went back to their campfire, sat down, and Bob gave Jane a big hug.
Jane and Bob’s Camping Trip

Jane and Bob have been married for ten years and every year Bob asks Jane – can we please go camping this year on vacation. Every year Jane says – no, I want to go to the Caribbean or I want to go to the beach or I want to go skiing, but of all the things I’d like to do on my vacation, camping is not one of them. Finally, on their tenth anniversary Jane gives in. She spends two weeks packing up all the bags of all the things they’ll need and she’s miserable because Bob hasn’t done a thing. Finally the day comes when they are going to leave to go Upstate to camp in the woods. They hurry out on the morning and drive five hours to a camp ground located in Upstate New York. Of course it’s a horrible day and it’s raining and it’s wet and the tent won’t stay up and it’s windy. Finally the tent collapses on them and Jane is beyond upset. That night finally the wind dies down and the rain slows down and they were able to build a camp fire. They sit around the camp fire and they watch the shadows of the fire on the trees and the sounds of animals in the forest and they hug and they kiss and Jane realizes that maybe it’s not so bad that they went camping after all, and that Bob had a good idea. They hug and they finally go to sleep in the tent that they finally got to stand straight up and Janes agrees to give the whole week a try. After they come home, she agrees that although she doesn’t really want to go every year, maybe every ten years she’ll go camping.
Jane and Bob’s Camping Trip

Jane and Bob decided that on Friday night they were going to take off for the hills. They packed their bags in a hurry and threw all of their belongings in the back of their 4-wheel drive vehicle and drove several hours to the camp site. When they got there, they decided they were going to set up their tent right away and get ready for dinner. The wind was terrific and as they were setting up the tent, it kept collapsing. They were getting very upset. Finally they did get the tent set up. It was very dark now. They were exhausted. They built a camp fire and made some dinner. They started to relax, but suddenly they saw a shadow. They didn’t know what it was. They heard some terrible sound. They were very frightented, but they hugged each other and fell asleep because they were so exhausted they forgot all about the frightening stuff.
Jane and Bob's Camping Trip

Jane was really excited. She finally convinced her husband, Bob, to go camping with her. Bob was not the outdoor type and Jane always loved that before they got married, so she finally convinced him that it was time to take a camping trip. Reluctantly, Bob carried the bags out to the car and they hurried over to the camp site. They got there and they sent up tent and they set up all their eating utensils. They set up a campfire and got everything all ready. Suddenly, it got really windy out and the tent just flew right over. It collapsed right from under them. Bob was saying, "I knew it, I knew this would happen. I hate camping". He complained and complained, but Jane said, "Don't worry, I know that we could fix this ourselves". By the light of the campfire, they started to try and make things better. They finally got the tent back up and they had some smores and told some scary stories. They made some shadow puppets on the wall and pretend. They wound up having a great time and Bob apologized for complaining all these years about camping. He decided that it was really fun and next time he would go without giving Jane a problem and he gave her a big hug.
Jane and Bob's Camping Trip

One day Jane and Bob decided to go out and do something different. They thought about what they could do and they thought it would be nice to go on a camping trip together. They went back to their houses and they packed up all their bags. They decided on all the different things they could take, food, clothes, everything they needed as necessities. They were very excited about this trip so they packed in a hurry. They kept thinking of other things that they would need, food, blankets, and most importantly, a tent. They needed to bring that to keep them warm. They got on their way and started to drive up into the mountains. Once they got up there they set up their tent and were ready to go out for a fishing trip. All of a sudden they saw how windy it got. They went back to their tent and they thought they'd stay there before they went fishing because the wind really started to pick up. As they were sitting in the tent, the tent started to collapse. They got nervous and scared and didn't know what to do. Jane was very upset that this happened. But Bob showed her that they'd get the camp site back up together again and everything would be fine. Once they got the tent back up, it was still a little cold. Bob decided to build a camp fire. Jane thought that was a great idea. They set up the camp fire and sat around eating some food. While they were sitting around all of a sudden Jane heard a noise and it sounded like a bear or an owl. She wasn't sure what it was. All of a sudden Bob looked up and saw a shadow and said, I think I know what it is. It's an owl. She said - are you sure? He said yes. That made Jane very happy. They sat down and they just sat around the camp fire talking the rest of the night and they figured they'd do the fishing tomorrow. Jane turned to Bob and said - thank you very much for taking us camping, then leaned over and she gave him a big hug.
Jane and Bob’s Camping Trip

Jane and Bob are going on a camping trip. They’ve just had a big fight and they’re not really getting along but they decide to still go on the camping trip. They have a lot of bags with them and Bob is in a big hurry to get there before it gets dark so they can set up their tent. They arrive at the campsite and it’s very windy and dark and they’re having trouble setting up their tent. It keeps collapsing. And Jane gets very upset. And she and Bob are still not getting along but they make a campfire and decide to sit under the shadow of the trees listening to the sounds and relaxing and trying to get over their hard feelings against one another. And as they sit relaxing looking at their tent and the sky on a beautiful night in the woods, they rectify their argument and give each other a big hug. And live happily ever after.
Jane and Bob’s Camping Trip

Jane and Bob were very excited about their upcoming camping trip. They woke up early in the morning….they woke up early the morning they were supposed to leave and they hurried to get up to the campsite. When they got there they set up a tent and they had a really nice day at the campsite. But then when evening started coming, the wind started picking up. Bob said he would be right back. He was gonna go see if he could catch a fish for dinner. Next thing you know, the tent collapsed from all the wind. Jane got very upset. She didn’t know what to do so she went and sat by the campfire waiting for Bob to get back. All of the sudden she saw a shadow and she heard a sound in the bushes. She was quite relieved when she saw it was Bob. And she ran up and gave him a big hug.
Jane and Bob’s Camping Trip

Ready? O.k. Jane and Bob’s camping trip. It was Jane and Bob’s fifth wedding anniversary and they decided to go away. Jane looked through many brochures and decided that a nice, simple camping trip in the country would be just what she needed. Although their child was only two, they decided to leave baby Melissa with their grandparents…with her grandparents. Jane made all the arrangements to have the weekend alone with Bob for their anniversary and she was going to drop Melissa off at her mom’s house to be cared for. Jane packed her bags. She wasn’t in a hurry that much because this would be her first separation away from her daughter. But she thought her and Bob needed the time away just to reconnect because, like I said, since the child was born they haven’t really done much except raise and nurture their child. So, she thought maybe the getaway would be a nice, little romantic trip for them. It was Friday afternoon and Jane hurried along and packed up the bags. Bob took the day off and loaded all the equipment in…into the car.

First,…after the car was all loaded with all their supplies, they drove up to the grandmother’s house, dropped Melissa off, and they gave her a big hug and kiss and said, “You have a good time with Grandma.” And Grandma was going to take Melissa to the circus and she was real excited uh...about going to the circus and spending time with her Grandma and Grandpa. They gave a big hug and a kiss good-bye and Jane and Bob were off on the road going up the Major Deegan to their long awaited camping trip. They drove for awhile talking…you know, and having a good time…reminiscing about the old days when they had no children and they used to go camping a lot and skiing and do lots of adventurous things. So they were really looking forward to just being up in the mountains and making a campfire and just relaxing. And maybe taking…a canoe ride down the Delaware Water Gap, like they used to do. So, they got up to their spot and…it was kind of windy and Bob set up the tent. …And Jane made a comment, “It’s kind of windy. Make sure that tent doesn’t collapse on us!” So, Bob secured it all nice and well and then they went for a little hike in the mountains. And they were listening to the sounds of the birds as they walked through the hiking trails. They were having a good time out in nature. It made them feel good. They came home and they…to their little tent and they sat by the campfire. Jane was getting a little upset thinking about Melissa; feeling a little anxiety about leaving her. But Bob assured her with a big hug that everything would be ok. They sat by the campfire and watched the shadows of the fire light the trees in the background. They listened to the wind and the sounds of the crackling fire and they gave a big hug and kissed and said, “Happy Anniversary.”
Bob was really excited to go camping. He decided to go camping with Jane. Jane was less than enthusiastic at the idea of being in a tent and listening to the wind and seeing shadows and being frightened by sounds in the woods. They hurriedly packed their bags. Jane filled hers with canned goods and blankets. Just as Jane predicted, the tent collapsed in the wind. Bob was all upset because she was upset. So they put out their camp fire and went home.
The Accident

Sue and Mike were heading home from dinner that they were eating out at a restaurant. They were driving along on the street and got into a terrible accident. Sue had tears rolling down her eyes and realized Mike was really hurt. She called for an ambulance, and they took Mike to the hospital. The doctor came in and reassured her that everything was going to be okay. They realized that they left their car on the side of the road, and they were going to have to wait at the hospital for it to be towed back home. Sue stayed at the hospital and ate some dinner while Mike laid in his bed, and she gave him a hug good-night.
Sue Bonds was a teacher. She lived in a rural area and she was a good driver. One day, Sue was out driving on the road and she realized that she forgot her glasses. She wasn't sure where she was and decided to pull over and take out a map. Sue took out her map and began driving again. She was looking for the road and where to go. Sue didn't realize that she wasn't paying attention to the road and suddenly hit the car in front of her. She didn't think she was hurt but her head did hit the windshield. And when the police came, they decided that she should go to the hospital to have her head checked out. When Sue got to the hospital, they looked in her wallet and found her husband Mike's address and phone number and decided to phone him. When Mike got there, he was in the waiting room and they wouldn't let him see Sue yet because they weren't sure what was wrong with her. Sue was crying and tears were streaming down her face because she wanted to see Mike cause she was scared. Of course, she was. The doctor finally came in and he said that it was just some tears and they were going to give her three stitches for her head and that she was able to see Mike very soon. The nurse then came in, stitched up Sue's head and said she would be fine and that she could go home soon. When Mike was able to see her, Sue was very happy to be acquainted back with her husband and all she wanted to do was go home. He signed her out of the hospital, went home that night. Mike made her a nice dinner and went to bed early. And that's the end.
The Accident

It was a cold and windy fall afternoon and it was just beginning to rain. A lot of leaves were scattered on the roads and Sue was driving home from work. As the rain started to come down the roads became more and more slick, with all of the leaves on them - especially slick. As Sue was rounding a curb in a neighborhood that she had driven in many many times before, all of a sudden her car slipped and before she knew what was going on she had crashed into a car that was coming out of an intersection and had an intersection. Neither car was damaged very badly but Sue did have some pain in her neck, so she decided that she better check herself into the hospital and get herself checked out, because she knew that neck pain was nothing to fool around with. So she made some calls on her cell phone. She called Mike, her husband, and told him what had happened, feeling very upset the whole time. Sue drove to the hospital and had to wait to be seen by the doctor but she was also waiting for Mike to arrive. When Mike walked in the door the events of the day recalled themselves to her and Sue burst into tears. Then the doctor walked into the waiting room and took Sue and examined her. It turned out that there was nothing seriously wrong with her so after she was seen by the doctor Mike and Sue drove home. Since it was such a hard day for Sue, Mike decided to prepare dinner that evening and they had a nice quiet dinner together and discussed the events of the day and Sue tried not to concentrate on the bad things that had happened but of course she couldn't help it. She decided to turn in early, so after taking a shower Sue went to bed. Mike stayed down stairs and cleaned up and after watching T. V. for a little bit he went upstairs to check on Sue who was still awake because she couldn't stop thinking about the accident. He sat down on the side of the bed and gave her a hug and then they decided to watch some T.V. together until they went to sleep.
The Accident

Coming home by herself late one night, Sue swerved to miss a deer that ran across the road. She ended up in a ditch. She couldn’t believe she had had her first accident. She waited by the side of the road for some time having left her cell phone at home. Eventually, a good Samaritan picked her up and looking at her car insisted that he take her to the hospital to see a doctor; who pronounced her fine. She then had to call Mike, her husband, and explain to him, with some tears, that she had taken his car and run it off the road into a ditch. Mike, however, reassured her that he was only worried about her and not the car. And he came to the hospital to pick her up and take her home. He made her a great big dinner, tucked her in bed, gave her a hug, and said, “I’m just glad you’re ok.” The End.
The Accident

Sue was getting dinner ready for her and her husband, Mike, and their kids when she realized she ran out of milk and she needed it to make the potatoes. So she told Mike to watch the kids while she went out to get the milk. She went out in the car and drove down the long winding road to get the milk. She was in a hurry because she really wanted to get home fast. So she was speeding and another car was coming the opposite way, while he was swerving down this road. It was nighttime so she was having a hard time seeing even with the headlights coming directly at her as they were at high beams. She tried to slow down and avoid the car coming but the car kept coming toward her. She got nervous. She slammed on her brakes and the car slid, got out of control, and the two cars got into a complete accident head on. The other man came out of the car and realized what had happened. He had a cellphone and he called the police. The police came by and they took everyone to the hospital. Sue was unconscious and the other man was fine and he was drunk and he did not have any injuries. She had ID on her when they got to the hospital and they called home to Mike to pick her up, to come to the hospital to see her. So Mike answered the phone, they called, and they relayed information that Sue was in the hospital and in critical condition and that she was unconscious. Mike started to cry but realized that he had to be strong for the kids so he called up his mother and had his mother come over and watch the kids while he went to the hospital. So the mother waited at home with the kids while Mike left to go to the hospital. He got there and he saw the doctor and the doctor said that she had a really bad accident but she seems to be waking up and would he please go in and speak to her. So Mike went in there, spoke to her, and she opened her eyes, looked up and smiled at Mike and said, "What on earth happened?". He told her what had happened and she said she's so sorry. She just wanted to make potatoes with the milk and he said, "Let's have the doctor look at you". The doctor came in and he looked her over and he said, "Well, you don't have any serious injuries. You were knocked unconscious. We're going to do a head X-ray and make sure you're ok. After the tests came back as fine, the doctor said that she could go home as long as she gets plenty of rest and do not worry about the potatoes. Mike took Sue home with the doctor's advice and told her to go relax on the couch and gave her a nice blanket to put on her to keep her nice and warm. And put on her favorite show, she watched The Robber that night and he decided to make dinner for all his family. Being a good husband that he is, he picked up milk on the way home and he made potatoes and steak and he made it for all and the kids were happy and he put the kids to bed and mommy too... Sue-Sue. He came back after the kids were asleep and he sat next to Sue and told her that he was really worried that he was really going to lose her and he was extremely glad that she was ok and she was extremely happy too and they gave each other a hug and went back to sleep.
The Accident

Sue was rushing in her car to go to the supermarket to pick up something for dinner. All of a sudden a dog ran in front of the car and she swerved to avoid him and she ended up hitting the tree. Unfortunately, she had to go to the hospital. She waited for a long time of her husband Mike to come see her. She was very upset. She was crying and she had tears in her eyes when the doctor came in to see her. Everything was okay. She only had some cuts and bruises. She wanted to go home right away but she had to wait a little bit longer for some tests. Finally, Mike drove her home and they picked up dinner on the way home and after dinner they watched a movie and they went to bed, and hugged each other good night.
The Accident

Sue was a field rep who works for a lot of money and is on the road quite a bit. Mike is her husband and is a teacher and usually gets home earlier than Sue. Sue is on the road quite a bit for her job. Mike waits at home for Sue to come home because Mike doesn’t like to cook dinner but Sue does. One night Sue was a little later than usual, which made Mike quite worried.

When that dreaded phone call came to the house it was Sue’s doctor who said that Sue was in a minor accident and was in Stony Brook Hospital, and that Mike was not to worry, but Sue was to be kept there overnight. Mike jumped in their car, dropped off their daughter at Sue’s parent’s house and started to drive over to Stony Brook. Even though the doctor said Sue was fine, he couldn’t help but to think what had happened. His eyes filled with tears. He got to the hospital. He saw Sue in the bed and she was fine. She had that smile on her face that she normally does and she said - “I’m fine honey, they just want to keep me here overnight.”. Mike went over to her and gave her the biggest hug he could, and said - “I guess you’re not cooking dinner tonight.”. Everything was fine after that.
Sue was driving home from work on a road she takes every day. It’s a winding road. As she went around a curve she had seen an accident. Somebody had hit a dog. Sue had volunteered to go with the person to the animal hospital, to see if the dog was okay. They were waiting around.

Sue decided to call, Mike, because he was expecting her home for dinner. Mike came by and it ended up that the dog needed a little more attention than they thought. Sue started to cry. The doctor finally came out and told them that the dog was doing well and he had to stay for a couple of days, but he should be fine. Sue and Mike went home, had a little dinner and decided to go to bed early and gave each other a big hug.
The Accident

Sue was on her way to work one day. As she was driving down the road, she spotted an accident. She looked over and saw that it was someone she knew. When she stopped, she noticed it was her friend, Mike. She was very upset. She started to get nervous so she called the police. As she was waiting for the police, the ambulance showed up and they had to take Mike to the hospital. She followed the ambulance down to the hospital where she sat in the waiting room and had to wait for Mike to come out. About an hour later, the doctor came out and said to her that she could go in the room to see Mike. When Sue went in the room, she was very upset and nothing but tears could come down her face to see Mike so cut up and upset that he was in an accident. When the doctor finally came in he told Sue that everything was okay and that he could go home now. Sue drove Mike home and asked him if he wanted anything for dinner. She made him some dinner in bed, got him all tucked in for the night and they sat there and they talked about what happened. Sue leaned over and told Mike that she was very happy nothing else seriously happened to him. Before she left the room she gave Mike a hug good bye.
Sue is on the road very late at night and she’s extremely tired. She’s going to her boyfriend’s house and she starts to doze off and the next thing she knows she’s had an accident along the guardrail on the road. An ambulance comes and takes her to the hospital where she is undergoing... The doctors are making sure she’s ok. And she asks the doctor if Mike’s there and the doctor says to her that he’s waiting and he’s very, very concerned. She asks if she can please see him. So he comes into the room and there are tears in his eyes and he just hugs her and tells her that he wants to bring her home, that he’s made dinner for her and that he’ll put her to bed. And that he loves her. So they go home together and Sue is ok.
Sure left work very late one night and was driving home on a normal road that she would take to go home, when she realized there was too much traffic. So she got off the road that she usually takes and started taking a side road. She was driving faster than she should have on a side road that she didn’t know very well and she hit a tree. And she realized the accident was pretty bad so she picked up her cell phone and called for an ambulance. When the ambulance arrived they decided she needed to take a trip to the hospital. So she got in the ambulance and they drove her to the hospital. When they got to the hospital she realized that she should call her husband Mike and so she got on her cell phone, which they told her she couldn’t use in the hospital. Then she put the cell phone down because she realized that she couldn’t use it in the hospital and called her husband Mike. She said that she would wait for him to get there before she let them do anything to assist her with her injuries. When Mike showed up and she saw him for the first time she started to cry, and she hadn’t cried the whole time she was waiting for him to come, or the whole time the paramedics were working on her at the accident scene. When he saw her crying he gave her a big hug and told her “Don’t worry, the doctor will come see you soon, and as soon as the doctor checks you out and makes sure you’re okay, I’ll take you home and make you a big dinner.” So after the doctor checked her out and said she wasn’t hurt too bad, Mike and Sue went home where Mike did just as he promised, he made her dinner. They had a big dinner and he told her that he was so sorry that she had gotten hurt and he wished he could have gotten there sooner or had been with her. They both got into their pajamas, got into bed and he gave her a big hug and said “I’m so glad you weren’t hurt too bad.”
Sue and Mike were on their way home when they got into a road accident. They had to wait for an ambulance to come and then they were taken to the hospital. The doctor told them that they were okay. They had tears of happiness because they were both crying. They went home to have dinner and they hugged in bed.
The Accident

Sue was driving down the winding roads in her home town. It was in a very wooded area and it was getting dark. She was driving fast, as she often does, and all of a sudden, a big deer came out into the middle of the road. To avoid hitting the deer, she swerved and hit a tree. Luckily she had her cell phone. She used it to contact the ambulance. The ambulance came and got her out of the car and took her to the hospital. Once she was at the hospital she had to wait and wait and wait to be seen, because unfortunately it was a busy night in the emergency room. One of the nurses contacted her husband, Mike, to see if he was going to be able to come to the hospital and visit her. When Mike arrived, he immediately ran over to the doctor to find out how his wife was. The doctor told him, “Everything is fine, it was just a couple of bumps and bruises. You will be able to take her home in a couple of hours.” Once he got her home, she took very good care of her. He made her a delicious dinner and tucked her into bed. He was very glad that she was ok and the deer was also safe.
Sue worked for a lawyers office and the lawyer sent her out to file some papers in court. Sue is also five months pregnant. On her way back from court, she was waiting at a red light and a car rear-ended her from behind. She was very upset because she was pregnant and she was worried that something might have happened to the baby. She got out of the car and started ranting and raving to the man who hit her about how she was pregnant and how he might have hurt the baby. She was really upset. They called the doctor and the doctor told her to meet him over at the hospital. He said that he would check her out and make sure everything was okay. She was crying and she was worried. She called her husband, Mike, and told him to meet her at the hospital as well. Mike flew out of work, he was all worried. They all met at the hospital. The doctor put a fetal monitor on her and told her the baby was okay. She had no bumps or bruises and she was just a little shaken up. Luckily the car wasn't too bad although that's not really important. Mike took her home and gave her dinner in bed. The doctor told her just to relax, so she stayed in bed for the next day. She and Mike were really happy that the baby was okay. They hugged and went to sleep.
The Accident

Sue was driving down the road when she witnessed an accident between two cars. And being an EMT, she decided to go over and help. So, she went over to see what the matter was. And one of the parties were injured pretty badly. So, they waited for the ambulance to come and take them to the hospital. She administered some care; CPR and what not. And then when they got to the hospital, she paged her husband Mike who was a doctor there to help out also. Mike, her husband, came over and administered care to the patient. His wife was very upset at having witnessed the accident and she had tears in her eyes. When it was seen that the patient was in stable condition, Sue went home and cooked dinner. And then when Mike came home they ate their dinner. And they went to bed and they hugged.
The Accident

While Sue was driving her car down Middle Country Road, she was slowing down at a light and someone hit her from behind and she was in a really bad car accident. When she got out of the car her neck started to bother her and the ambulance came to take her to the hospital. On her way there she used her cell phone to call Mike, her husband. Once she got to the hospital, it was one of those hurry up and wait kind of things. She felt like she was waiting a very long time until the doctor came to let her out and tell her what was wrong with her, and release her. When Mike got there and saw her, he started to cry. The doctor finally came and told him that everything was okay and that she was injured and she only sprained everything. Mike took her home and got her into bed and gave her a really big hug and made her a light dinner to eat.
The Accident

Sue was on her way to pickup some groceries at Walbaum’s. She was driving down the road and came upon a stop sign. As she stopped at the stop sign she looked up to see if any cars were coming. She didn’t see any so she drove on. Apparently, she didn’t notice that there was a car coming through an intersection and that car hit her car and she wound up in an accident. The ambulance arrived and she had to go to the hospital to get checked out. While she was waiting the nurses called her husband to have him come and pick her up and to comfort her while she was there. When Mike walked in, she started to cry because she was all upset and shaken by the accident. After waiting and getting checked out, the doctor released her and nothing was wrong. On their way home they were speaking about the accident and Mike was able to calm Sue down. When she got home, Sue made dinner for Mike and that evening before she went to bed, Mike gave her a big hug.
The Accident

Sue was driving along the road when she turned the corner and came upon an accident. Since she was an R.N., she hopped out of her car, asked if there was anything she could do. She noticed that it was a neighbor of hers and asked if she could take a ride in the ambulance to the hospital. They told her to wait in the back of the ambulance while they checked on Mike. Sue explained to Mike that she was driving along and wanted to help since she was a nurse and there were tears in Mike’s eyes when he heard the doctor say that he might have broken his leg. Sue called home and explained the situation to her husband. And told him that he should make dinner and have the kids in bed before she got home. The husband said not to worry, to do what she had to do, to give Mike a hug, and make sure that he felt comfortable and not alone until his wife was able to get to the hospital herself.
The Accident

One evening Sue was home cooking dinner waiting for Mike to return from work. He was supposed to be home at 6 o’clock, but as the time passed 6 o’clock, Sue began to worry.

Mike was never later and he always called if he was going to be late. Around 7 pm she got a phone call from someone at the hospital. Mike had been in an accident while driving home.

A car crossed the road against the light and hit Mike’s car. They told her that Mike was fine but he was at the hospital. She left everything at home and ran to see him. When she got there, she had tears in her eyes, and she gave him a big hug. The doctor came to see him and told them that he would be just fine and he would be released after some further tests. Mike came home with Sue that night and his dinner was cold.
The Accident

One day Sue and Mike were driving down the road. And all of the sudden, a car came out of nowhere and hit them. Fortunately, nobody in their car was hurt. Sue and Mike were ok, but the person that darted out and hit them seemed like they were hurt. They didn’t get out of their car. They just stayed there. They weren’t bleeding or anything but they wanted to wait for an ambulance to take them to the hospital. At this point, Sue was in tears because she was very upset. Even though the accident wasn’t her fault, she was upset that somebody else was hurt. The ambulance finally came and the woman went and saw a doctor at the hospital. And it turned out she was ok. She might have been suffering from a little whiplash, but it turned out that she was gonna be fine. So, once Sue and Mike heard the news, they went home and had dinner. Mike was very supportive of how Sue...how upset Sue was. He gave her a big hug before they went to bed and let her know that everything was gonna be ok. And that accidents just happen.
One night while Sue was home preparing dinner, she realized that she didn't have one of the basic ingredients for her meal. She had to pack the kids up, back into the car and go to the store. On the way back from the store, the road was very slick from an earlier storm. She swerved off the road and got into an accident. The police came and fortunately nobody was seriously injured, but they needed to take her to the hospital just to make sure that she and the kids were okay. The police notified her husband Mike of the accident, and he said he would get there as soon as he could. Mike worked in Manhattan and it would be a while before he could get to the hospital. Sue's mom came and picked up the kids, because they were able to be released. Sue needed to wait in the hospital for Mike to come to get her. It seemed like forever. When Mike finally arrived at the hospital, he was in tears, because he was so frightened, and it took him so long to get there. He was relieved to hear from the doctor that everything was fine and that his kids were home safe. After many hours of testing and paperwork, they were finally released from the hospital and able to go home. When Mike and Sue arrived home, the children were in bed and Sue's mother left. Sue and Mike looked at the unprepared dinner on the counter and it reminded them how precious life is; and that things can take a turn immediately, without warning. With this on their mind, they went to bed early and thought of how fortunate they were that everything turned out okay. They fell asleep and because they realized their lives were so full, they never even thought about dinner.
